SULPHUR VANQUISHES THE ADA BOYS ONCE MORE

Ada lost for the third time to Sulphur Wednesday afternoon, 8 to 5.

In the eighth, after Foster struck out, Baldwin put a clean single over second, and scored on Luttrell's two bagger into right. "Peewee" took third on Schebaun's line drive tweek second and first, Schebaun stealing second. Both were scored on Kaikes' scratch to third, but the scoring stopped.

In the ninth, Gregory got first on Hardy's error, but was thrown out at second on Foster's pop-up which Shaw got on the bound. Foster was caught at second by Mackey on Baldwin's easy grounder. Baldwin stole second and third, and scored on Hardy's error. "Peck" redeemed himself, however, by a brilliant running catch of Schebaun's foul fly, and the game was over.

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Sulphur	4	0	0	0	1	0	0	3	0-8
Ada	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	3	1-5

Summary. Earned runs, Sulphur 5, Ada 4; left on base, Sulphur 6, Ada 4; two base hits, Shaw, Fenner, Baldwin, Luttrell; hit by pitched ball, Hardy, Patten, Fenner, Schebaun; struck out by Luttrell 5, by Mackey 5; time of game, 1 hr. 25 minutes; umpire Woodward; scorer, Giac.

Thrown From a Wagon.

George Bardell, the accommodating night clerk at the Harris Hotel, met with a painful accident Thursday morning. He was out in the country riding on the running gear of a wagon drawn by two mules when they jumped a small but deep ditch in the road; throwing him to the ground. One wheel passed over his body breaking his arm and collar bone.

STATEHOOD WILL HELP FARMERS TO ORGANIZE

Guthrie, June 28.—Among the important benefits that will come to Indian Territory with statehood is that of complete organization of farmers, such as is now found in all counties of Oklahoma.

C. A. McNabb, secretary of the board of agriculture, has just returned from Indian Territory where he worked in the interests of Oklahoma Agricultural exhibit for the Jamestown exposition.

Mr. McNabb says that all commercial organizations of Indian Territory are giving their aid toward collecting material for the exhibit and that the combination of both Oklahoma and Indian Territory products will, in all probability, rank fully as high as did the Oklahoma exhibit at St. Louis.

Through the Oklahoma board of Agriculture immediate steps are to be taken to thoroughly organize the Territory farmers.

Shudder at the Name.

Several highly cultured persons from the east shudder hearing the names given by the primitive cowboys to some of the creeks in this country. We have Skeleton, Bottle, Wild Horse, Bell Cow, Skull, Red Mule, Gopher, Mustang, Ghost and several other oddly named creeks. The less euphonious and to some extent bawdily named streamlet is dashing, splashing, rushing, tumbling Hellroaring creek in Pawnee county. Even the religious people of the triangular county have become used to the irreverently sounding name of the most romantic tributary of the salty, lower Cimarron. Several protracted M. E. campmeetings have been held on the rocky banks of the streamlet, and the campmeetings on classic Hellroaring creek are always extensively advertised in newspapers and on posters.—State Capital.

LIQUOR MAN PREDICTS STATE WILL BE DRY

Oklahoma City, Ok., June 28.—"You can put it down as a business proposition," said a prominent traveling man for a wholesale liquor house here today, "that the new state of Oklahoma is going to be prohibition. You wouldn't expect that statement from me, I'll admit, and for the sake of my business I am loath to make it, but I have studied conditions as they actually exist, not as I would like to have them from a business standpoint."

According to the prohibition provision as contained in the bill admitting Oklahoma to the Union, the new state, known as that part, Indian Territory and all Indian reservations in Oklahoma will be restricted from the sale of liquor for 21 years.

"I have talked with a good many people in both territories about the prohibition movement, and I will venture to say that there is not a school house in either territory but what has a temperance organization of some kind. From the Indian Territory will come the greatest opposition ever experienced between one section and another because of the present provision. Take for instance Chickasha and El Reno. The people of Chickasha are not going to submit to El Reno's selling whiskey because they claim it will take business away from them. Then the people of Indian Territory will make the broader contention that one half of the state cannot be licensed to sell whiskey while the other half is prohibited from it. If the people of the Indian Territory are admitted to full citizenship, regardless of race, color, or previous condition of servitude, then there's no way to prevent the Indians from obtaining all the whiskey they want, the provision named above will not be effective. You will see when the constitutional convention comes that every delegate from the Indian Territory will stand pat for absolute prohibition, and I will venture to say that half of those from Oklahoma will stand with the Indian Territory fellows. From a business standpoint, if not from any reasons of sentiment, I will say, they will do it."

STANDARD OIL FIGHTERS NOW IN OKLAHOMA CITY

Two men who have been very much in the public eye of late are in Oklahoma City at the present time, one of whom is credited by Ida Tarbell, in her magazine stories of the Standard oil company, published in McClure's magazine, with having started the movement which has brought that corporation into the limelight of late. This individual is Frank Monett, formerly attorney general of the state of Ohio, who owes his failure of re-election directly to Standard oil influence.

Mr. Monett is here with J. C. Stephenson, assistant attorney general of the state of Arkansas. These two men are here on a secret mission, the nature of which they will not make public and concerning which no information could be obtained from the law firm of Crockett & Johnson, with which they have been noticed in frequent conferences during the past few days.

It is believed the distinguished visitors are here digging up evidence to be used against the great oil octopus. Mr. Monett is said to be in the employ of the government in prosecuting the big trust company, and Judge Stephenson is co-operating with the attorney general of the state of Arkansas in prosecuting the trusts in Arkansas and other states.

As attorney general of the state of Ohio, Mr. Monett drove the Standard Oil company out of the Buckeye state. In retaliation he was defeated at a subsequent election. It is said that, wherever he goes, he is constantly followed by sleuths of the big corporation under instructions to note and report his every movement. It is likely that Attorneys Monett and Stephenson will be in Oklahoma City for several days.—Oklahoman.

Tennis Tournament.

Only one full set was played Wednesday afternoon in the tournament with the following results: Epperson and Holt playing the winners of the first gentlemen's double, Eddleman and Haraway, 6-1. The game between Warren and Brown vs Epperson and Holt was not finished but will be at some later date.

This morning at 7:30 the ladies assembled on the tennis court for another interesting game—Misses Francis Deacon and Vera Fulton vs Misses Edna Fulton and Mildred Timberlake; after many "love games" the score stood "deuce" set.

After the game was finished the score keeper (a gentleman) challenged the winners of the last set, beating them 2-0 sets. The ladies are improving wonderfully in the "love" game and will soon be able to play the "deuce" game.

Another official game will be played this afternoon according to the program of the week's tournament.

Holdover for the Officers.

A provision has been inserted by the House of Representatives in the general deficiency bill directing the officials of the territory of Oklahoma to continue the maintenance of all public institutions and execute all existing contracts until the new state government shall have been established.

Another For Governor.

Muskogee, I. T., June 28.—On the fourth day of July Dr. F. D. Fite, ex-mayor of Muskogee, and who is an avowed candidate for governor on the democratic ticket, will formally launch his campaign. He has accepted an invitation to speak at Bixby, I. T.

A large crowd of men left this afternoon for Sandy where they will spend the night fishing.

UNDER THIS PARAGRAPH OFFICERS WILL HOLD OVER

Washington, June 28.—The paragraph in the general deficiency bill conveying into the United States treasury the appropriation for the legislative assembly expenses of the territory of Oklahoma continues as follows:

"And no election for members of the legislative assembly, or for any other official authorized by the laws of the said territory, or delegate to congress shall be held under and in pursuance of said laws in the year of 1906; and all persons heretofore elected to any of said offices, now serving and performing the duties thereof, shall continue to serve in their respective offices and perform all the duties thereof, with all the power and authority conferred upon them by the laws of the said territory, until such are terminated by the laws of the state of Oklahoma or until the officers provided for under the constitution of said state are duly elected and qualified. Provided, that in case no constitution is adopted and ratified, in accordance with the provisions of an act for the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory into the union as a state, then said territorial officers of Oklahoma shall continue to discharge the duties of their respective offices until successors are duly elected and qualified."

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

To show what we of the south are doing it can be said, according to the latest statistics that the value of the south's cotton crops for the last five years was $2,974,000,000, or $395,000,000 in excess of the total and gold and silver production of the world for the same period. This was an average annual increase of $200,000,000 over the value of the South's cotton crop for the preceding five years. This $1,000,000,000 of increase in cotton in five years has lifted from this section its entire indebtedness and placed it on solid ground for the wonderful expansion that is daily being noted.—Muskogee Phoenix.

HER PRAYER FOR MAMMA.

Special Clause in Tot's Supplication Prompted by Fear of De-railment.

A Walbrook mother a few days ago before starting on a trip to Atlantic City told her two little daughters, whom circumstances forced her to leave at home, of the speed with which the great engines would hurry her train to the resort by the ocean and of miles and miles of glistening rails over which she would travel before reaching her destination, relates the Baltimore Herald.

That afternoon, after kissing the children good-bye she asked them to remember her in their evening devotion, to which request the youngsters tearfully acquiesced. When the usual bed-

DO NOT FOR CHILDREN.

Before the Chicago Tuberculosis institute, held recently, one of the chief questions under discussion was: "How to Rid the Schools of Tuberculosis?" In this connection Dr. S. A. Knopf, of the New York health department, gave the following advice for children:

Do not spit except in a spittoon, or a piece of cloth, or a handkerchief used for that purpose alone. On your return home have the cloth burned by your mother, or the handkerchief put in water until ready for the wash.

Never spit on a slate, floor, sidewalk or playground.

Do not put your fingers in your mouth.

Do not pick your nose or wipe it on your hand or sleeve.

Do not wet your finger in your mouth when turning the leaves of books.

Do not put pencils in your mouth or wet them with your lips.

Do not put anything in your mouth except food and drink.

Do not swap apple cores, candy, chewing gum, half eaten food, whistles, bean blowers, or anything that is put in the mouth.

Peel or wash your fruit before eating it.

Do not kiss any one on the mouth.

Never cough or sneeze in a person's face. Turn your face to one side, or hold a handkerchief before your mouth.

Keep your face and hands and finger nails clean; wash your hands with soap and water before each meal.—Farmers' Review.

Thrown Out.

"And you say you lost your position by the great earthquake in San Francisco?" inquired the kind lady.

"Yes, mum," replied Frayed Franklyn.

"What was your position?"

"I wuz asleep in a barn at de time, mum."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

AMERICAN ARTISTS ABROAD

Their Merit Recognized and Rewarded Earlier Than It Is at Home.

Once more an American artist's picture holds the place of honor at the exhibition of the Royal Academy in London. Sargent had attained that honor; now it is Abbey's turn, with a picture distinctly American in subject, representing Columbus landing in the new world. Several other well-known American artists figure among the notable exhibitors. In the two annual picture shows now open in Paris, the same fact is true, reports the New York World.

American artists frequently complain, as do singers and musicians, that the surest way to distinction at home is recognition abroad. The protest implies that merit is not so readily accepted here as it is in France and England.

The distinction attained by Sargent in London has done more than all his early successors in this country to assure his preeminence. The same may be said to be true of Abbey, although fame came to him easy as an illustrator. Something may be due to the circumstance that for years both have done most of their work abroad. Beyond a doubt, however, art is viewed far more hospitably in Paris and London than in New York. We have yet no art exhibitions that occupy so large a place in popular life as the regular shows of the two foreign capitals.

It is noteworthy also that more contemporary American artists have room in the Luxembourg museum, where living painters must await admission to the Louvre, than in our own Metropolitan. The Paris list counts about 25, among them Whistler, Sargent, Winslow Homer, La Farge, Alexander Harrison, Henry Mosler, Walter MacEwen, Carl Melchers, Miss Cassatt, Edwin L. Weeks and H. O. Tanner.

Under the old management American artists were treated with suspicion at the Metropolitan. It was sometimes difficult to get their works through the museum's doors even as gifts.

Fortunate, all that is being rapidly changed. Sir Purdon Clarke advocates the necessity of building up a representative American collection. Mr. George A. Hearn has donated a large fund, of which the income is reserved for the purchase of American works. It is a curious commentary on American taste that it was not until a foreign director was put in charge of the Metropolitan that American artists were promised something of the same public recognition they receive from the French government.

TURKEY WITH WOODEN LEG

Tale of a Gobbler That Smacks Somewhat of the Munchausen Flavor.

In most communities there are certain persons who possess peculiar characteristics, habits and beliefs, and this is true of the 'long shore sportsman' of the old Mother State as of persons dwelling elsewhere, says Forest and Stream.

Many of the old time sportsmen still carry and use their muzzle loading guns, which cannot be displaced by more modern arms. They usually manage to bag a good many birds and other game, and this is chiefly due, it is believed, to their knowledge of the habits of the game. They seldom go out without finding something.

A story is told of one gunner who if any of the shot should fall from his hands while loading his gun will at once return home and make no further effort to hunt that day, believing as he says, that those lost were his luck shot, and it would be useless for him to continue the hunt.

Another, whom I will call here Capt. Pete, is a sailor and all round sportsman. He loves to tell of his adventures with his dogs and gun, and is seldom seen without them. He tells many stories about the accuracy of Sweet Lips, his gun, and declares he can beat any man "a-shootin' for a turkey in the United States of Virginny."

On the occasion of a turkey hunt near the Rappahannock river Capt. Pete claims to have shot a 40-pound wild turkey, for which he was offered $4 cash. The gray whiskers on the turkey's breast were 18 inches long, and he had one wooden leg. Here Capt. Pete gives a laugh that could be heard a half mile away. "Sar, he was the biggest turkey I ever saw. There were 18 fellows in the bunch of us, and four others besides, and all ate a sumptuous meal from one-half of his breast."

Uncle Pete says he cannot account for that one wooden leg unless that turkey had been previously owned by some one as a pet wild turkey.

Natural Arm Chair.

A gardener in Korea has formed a natural arm-chair by twisting a growing vine to the required shape. It is also studded with seeds of the ginkgo tree, which have grown into the fiber of the vine. After the chair was fashioned in this way it was cut from the ground, dried and polished until it resembled mahogany. It is 3 feet 4 inches high, 25 inches wide and weighs over 100 pounds.

IN CANDY BUSINESS

NO WASTE AS SCRAPS ARE ALWAYS MADE USE OF.

Seasoned Confectioners Considered the Best—Maker of the Sweets Must Be an Artist.

There is this similarity between the candy business and the iron business—the scrap is not allowed to go to waste. An observer who had an idea that candy manufacturers must have to stand a lot of loss because candies get stale, took the trouble to investigate and learned that his idea was wrong, says the New York Sun.

The big candy makers ship to their agents throughout the country at stated intervals, usually of a week, their standard confections, and all not sold at the expiration of the interval are returned to the factory as scrap. As the candy is mostly sugar, and sugar is as indestructible as iron, it is only a question for the candy maker of getting the sugar value out of the scrap.

It is impossible to work over the candy in its original form, but it can be used in many ways. For example, the chief use to which stale chocolates are put is in making caramels and other chewy confections.

It's a mistaken idea that candy must be fresh to be good. One manufacturer who makes only for the trade and confines himself chiefly to high-class chocolates and bonbons said that candy wasn't fit to eat until it had been seasoned for at least ten days. For his own use—and he is a great lover of candy, despite the general belief that no cook cares for his own messes—he keeps chocolates about a month before eating them.

This man has no patience with those who assert that colored candy is poisonous. His argument is simple. As he puts it:

"What's the use of putting poison in candy when natural and harmless coloring matter costs less? Who'd put

NEW JERSEY 'RICKSHAS.

Vehicle of Yankee Make Has Invaded the Orient with Good Results.

That characteristic vehicle of the orient, the jinrikisha, is drawn by a yellow coolie in Japan, a brown Hindu in India, a black Zulu in South Africa; but look between the shafts of the 'riksha in any of these countries, and you will probably find the same nameplate—that of a vehicle manufacturer in New Jersey. The Yankee jinrikisha has invaded the east, and its invader promises to result in a permanent occupation of countries where cheap labor would seem to forbid sales of American goods.

The Yankee 'riksha manufacturer competes on prices first. He sells vehicles as good as the native product at as low as $16 and no higher than $40. American factory methods permit turning them out in large numbers on the duplicate system. He also competes in quality, making jinrikishas with ball bearings, bicycle wheels and cushion tires at $80.

Different types of 'riksha are made for different countries. The vehicle is common in Lagos, Ceylon, and many other localities, each of which has its preferences in the way of weight, height, hoods, bells, lamps, colors, and cushions. The New Jersey factory also supplies the "pousse-pousse" used in Madagascar. It is a variety of jinrikisha with hood and springs.

Another is the "Korean cab," which is nothing more than an improvement on the clumsy Chinese wheelbarrow with its single wheel, familiar as a passenger vehicle in all Chinese cities. The "Korean cab" has a single wheel fitted with a pneumatic tire, and seats one passenger, the seat being placed high over the wheel. Coolies in front and behind balance and propel it, and the vehicle is capable of good speed.

When the Yankee 'riksha was introduced on the west coast of Africa, it was so much lighter than the vehicles previously known that the first Zulu who drew one presently stopped, lifted the vehicle and its passenger to his head, and wanted to carry it that way being easier. American wheelbarrows were introduced about the same time and a contractor who supplied them to his Fanti laborers, returning in a few hours, found them all being carried water-jar fashion.

FIND HEART OF RAMESES.

Vital Organ of Great Egyptian King Preserved in Vase for 3,164 Years.

A recent issue of the Comptes Rendus of the Paris academy contains an account of the successful identification of the heart of Rameses II., the Sesotris of the Greeks, after having been preserved since 1258 B. C. in soda and resinoid antiseptics.

Some months ago, says the New York Times, the council of the National Museum of the Louvre acquired possession of the four vases in blue enamel which contain the viscera and heart of Rameses II., and bear large medallions representing the names and attributes of the king.

The directors of the Egyptian museum desired absolute confirmation as to the contents of the vases and entrusted the examination of their contents to M. Lortet, who, with his colleagues, Professors Hugouenq, Renault and Rigan, made a careful physiological examination. Three of the vases contained bandages of linen tightly compacted and hardened by the carbonate of soda and aromatic resinous substances of reddish color, which had been employed as antiseptics and had probably contained the stomach, intestines and liver of the great king. These viscera, however, were only found to be represented by a quantity of granular matter, mixed with a large proportion of powdered carbonate of soda and so could not be identified.

The fourth vase, which was fitted with a lid or cover adorned with the head of a jackal, proved to contain the heart. This organ was found transformed into a kind of oval plate, eight centimeters long and four centimeters wide. The substance of the heart was hornlike and the saw had to be used in obtaining sections of it for examination and finally the razor, so as to reduce these sections to the attenuation necessary for microscopic examination.

Under the microscope these sections gave unmistakable evidence of the muscular fibers peculiar to the heart, especially characterized by being arranged in bundles of such fibers, crossing each other. Since this special muscular arrangement is not found in any other part of the body except the tongue and as the mummy of Rameses II., which is preserved at Cairo, contains the tongue intact, the experts have no doubt whatever that the vase actually contained the heart of Rameses II. flattened and transformed into a hornlike substance by its long sojourn in the soda preservatives.

King Rameses II. died 1,258 years before the Christian era and hence some 3,164 years have elapsed since his heart was first embalmed.

ON THE LONELY MAN

Men Away from Home Miss Familiar Chores—Women Have Small Resources to Pass the Time—The Man with a Fad Most Fortunate—Book Reading Unsatisfactory in a Deserted House—Summer Time Hardest on the Man Whose Family Goes Away.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.
(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)
A cat in a strange garret, a dog that has lost its owner, a fish out of water, each in turn symbolize the extreme of discomfort and misery. Discontent with one's environment is wretchedness.

Nobody who is intensely lonely can be anything but forlorn, although he may put a brave face on the situation and hide from the people he meets the yearning he has for home companionship. Men often feel the pangs of home-sickness and rebel against the dullness of solitude when their neighbors suspect them of no tedium and suppose them to be quite free and easy in their independence. A married man whose wife and children have gone away for a summer holiday, leaving him to hold the fort alone, picking up meals at clubs or restaurants, and sleeping in a house that echoes to the tread and has ghosts prowling about in every shadowy corner, is much to be pitied. Scores of such men go to business every day during the heated terms in our cities, and at night return to sleep in houses as silent as the tomb. They do not complain, they write jovial letters to the absent ones, and they make a pretense of engaging in such pastimes as are open to them, but the summer wears on their nerves.

A boy or man away from home for the first time, missing the familiar chores at morning or evening, and the mother-brooding that has been so constant and so sweet from childhood on, finds a boarding house among entire strangers as desolate as the desert.

What diversions are there for the lonely man? What shall Adam do in an Eden where there is no genial comrade to take him by the hand and make him feel that he is of much account?

Eve, left to herself, finds plenty of occupation for brain and fingers. She may busy herself with delicate laundry work not to be entrusted to the rough handling of servants. Stocks, lace handkerchiefs, cuffs and collars and the various accessories of a feminine toilette, may be periodically renovated in her own room, if she have the needful apparatus. She has stockings to darn, mending to do, shirt-waists to make, hats to trim, embroidery to fill her leisure, and always endless letters to write and sometimes books to read. A woman has the advantage over a man in a multitude of small resources, trifling in themselves, but essentially worth while in their results, and excellent as things that pass away time that might be empty and lonely.

Notwithstanding a general opinion to the contrary, a man is more dependent on the society of others and on the friendship of his equals than is the average woman.

When a man has a fad or a hobby or some knack at cabinet making or upholstery, he is vastly better off than his neighbor who understands only the single round of the day's work. A fellow who plays a musical instrument, whether it be banjo, mandolin or piano, can always while away solitary evenings, but the man who is most to be envied is the one who can take an old, disreputable and broken-down bit of furniture, a desk, a table, a sofa, and spend long and patient hours on rubbing it down, polishing and restoring it, so that he serves a double purpose; not only does he save the enormous expense charged by the trade for renovating antique furniture, but he makes his wife or sister the envy of all her friends by the marvels of his workmanship.

In a plain little parsonage in the mountains, never mind where, there are chairs and dressing tables that, anyone in the smart set might covet, evolved from the rubbish heap by the deft hand and skillful labor of a member of the family, who never finds time hanging heavily or knows the meaning of solitude, except in the sense of privilege and benefit.

A naturalist, whatever his field, is master of moods and often considers companionship superfluous. If one is devoted to the study of birds or butterflies or beetles, one need not dread a hermit life. Although one's home be in a crowded town, there are suburbs within reach and the man who would amuse his leisure by any department of scientific investigation, however humble, will not complain of loneliness.

Strange to say, although reading be one's passion, it is apt to pall in a house where one is the solitary occupant. The fire on the hearth in winter may give cheer and take away the sense of absolute seclusion, and a pipe is a good deal of company, but in summer, with windows open and a reless hearth, even the pipe is a disappointing makeshift for a familiar household presence. One loves to read if there are people moving about, if somebody sits near with a bit of needlework, or if in another room there is the low-voiced talk of young people who are a world to themselves, or if in the nursery above there are little rosy children fast asleep. But a book read in the silence of a deserted house often adds emphasis to home-sick yearning for company.

Of course, the man who is alone at home may write letters. Whether or not he does so depends on his facility in description and in the presence or absence of a gift of humor. A man deficient in the sense of humor loses nine-tenths of the happiness that might be his. Few situations are without a side that sparkles with fun for those who can discern it. A young man who lost everything in the San Francisco disaster wrote home to his people that for climatic reasons he had crossed the bay. "It is cooler over here," he said. And the letter in which he recounted a catalogue of misfortunes real enough to crush a weaker spirit, provoked irresistible laughter by its mirthful sallies. The man who sees the fun in things and who refuses to be tragic when there is the slightest chance to be comic is immeasurably more sensible and more fortunate than his fellow mortals who are nothing if not solemn and serious.

A good plan for husbands and sons abandoned in summer by their kinsfolk, as is our American custom, might be to pool their loneliness. It is not always safe for reasons of health and because of the accidents of sudden illness that sometimes seize those who are ordinarily well, for anyone to remain entirely alone in a house at night.

Few men fear the midnight burglar. With the silver in the safe deposit vault and the jewels in the possession of their wearers, there is little to tempt thieves, unless they are of the variety who steal lead pipes and burrow in the cellar. But two or three neighbors living together for a few weeks, with a housekeeper engaged to see that they have the material comforts of home, might defy loneliness and emerge from the season which to them affords only a fortnight's vacation none the worse for its experiences.

AN UNUSED DOORWAY.

Of Decided Value as Made Use Of by Either of the Means Here Suggested.

In the sitting-rooms of many houses built years ago are doorways which are quite unnecessary, remarks a writer in the Farmers' Review. Such a doorway can very easily be made to form a most useful piece of furniture.

Here are two good methods suggested by the New York World. In both the door is removed altogether and the top filled in with shelves, while the lower part in one is filled in with pigeon-holes, drawers and a writing flap above, a cupboard and drawers filling the space below, and forms a complete and most useful bureau, with drawers and shelves in which to stow all the belongings that, for writing purposes, one needs to have near at hand.

In the case of the other, the owner needed a place in which to stow large mounted photographs and sketches. The lower part of the recess is devoted to this, while above come drawers for smaller photographs, and above again shelves for books of reference. The top shelf, not being required at the moment, is filled with old china jars, and the whole effect is delightful.

Announcement Cards.

The announcement means that the wedding has taken place, therefore it cannot be sent until after the ceremony. Cards of announcement may be ready days beforehand; they may be addressed, sealed, stamped and in entire readiness for posting or sending in any preferred way, but not one should be sent until after the marriage ceremony has actually taken place and the couple really married. Announcement cards should be sent to all friends and acquaintances.

Hang-Nails.

Hang nails are possibly caused by the way you trim the sides of your nails; if you cut them too deeply there is nothing to support the flesh of the finger, and it covers the nail while growing; trim to leave sufficient nail to prevent the growing over, and there will be no hang nails. Use sharp nail scissors and cut the hang nail without making it sore in the least, and keep it clipped as it grows; never pull them out. Use warm vaseline for the nails.

To Remove Sunburn.

Barley boiled in water until the consistency of rich cream and used on the face will remove sunburn and leave the skin soft and white.

THE FASHIONABLE BOLERO

A Touch of Colored Velvet Seen on Lace Waists—Boleros Mark Late Mode.

One thing seen on the lace waists and lace boleros is a touch of colored velvet. On the boleros it is set in a little stiff collar piece around inside the neck and in little strips drawn through buckles or under buttons down the front. One finished with light blue had a little bias piece drawn through a central piece in the pattern at the back. It was put on horizontally and the ends were drawn out through small buckles, matched by the pieces in front.

A smart way of a useful little bolero is to have it cut almost like the old jacket bodice with a long fitted point in front, as though a corselet belt were cut in one with it, and fastening over just at the waist line in front with a big button of the same stuff. Say it is of one of the soft wools or of black moire. Two short straps, as it were, detach themselves from the front of the jacket, just below where it meets in a V shape, and do not close at the waist, but button down with rounded tab ends, and similar button on each side of the center or belt button tab.

One of the best ideas is to make a separate lawn lining for the little boleros to linen suits. A lawn bolero is cut exactly to the pattern of the linen bolero, sleeves and all, except that enough is taken off the depth to allow of a knife plaiting of lace edged lawn. This is an inch and a half deep when finished and projects only a speck from under the jacket, as frills are not deep this year. The lining is fitted into the jacket seams inward and only needs to be fastened at the armholes, and has the inestimable advantage of washing and ironing separately, not to mention the saving in work.

FASHIONABLE PARASOLS.

How to Rejuvenate an Old Sun Shade to Make It Look Like Those Approved at the Moment.

Before going to work to cover or rejuvenate an old parasol with white, enamel the stick, as the white handle makes part of the prettiness. Other pretty handles are in the form of parrots and other gay tropical birds. They are highly colored and the frame is covered with silk to correspond. Chinese silks are one of the new coverings, some of the patterns being as effective as if painted. One of the convenient fashions for furnishing one's own parasol is the floppy ruffle, which again is put around the edge and which as often as not is finished with little tufts as it would be on a petticoat.

White cloth tailor makes form a part of the smartest wardrobe. Outing and yachting suits to which there are three pieces are popular in white serge. The natty little jackets trimmed with touches of white, dark blue, and brilliant red are to be worn over white linen or scarlet silk waists, while the shirt-waist made on severer lines is to be worn with the same skirt. Fancier tailor suits are trimmed with lace as if they were linens. One of the prettiest was made with a group of tucks and a row of insertion of Irish lace set above it. The zouave is cut quite short and is finished with a roll collar of white velvet, and has a little vest of Irish lace to match the skirt. The zouave is attached to the skirt by pretty buttons set on at both back and front.

Hosiery Styles.

The new stockings are worthy of note. They are embroidered and built upon openwork designs and they match the costume. This makes them very interesting from a woman's point of view, for they give her certain opportunities in dress which she did not have before. And the same with her shoes, which come in all colors. She can get them in kid, patent leather, in suede, in linen and in cloth.

"Princess" Materials.

Taffeta is the ideal material for the Princess skirt and jacket. But a great many of these suits are being made of foulard, and they are in all colors, brown, blue, gray and tan, for the foulards come this season in every color under the sun. And they are also in all materials, challie, cloth, novelty goods and white linen. Every material is impressed into the service.

SOCIAL OBSERVANCES.

The Afternoon Reception, the Receiving Party in Harmony of Color—Refreshment Room.

A "high tea" is only another name for the "at home" or afternoon reception. That is, the same rules for receiving guests and in their entertaining hold good to a great degree.

Perhaps in the matter of receiving there is more formality in the matter; usually a hostess asks several friends or members of the family to "stand" with her, as well as the special guest or perhaps young daughter or daughter-in-law about to be introduced.

An afternoon reception is a charming affair if well planned and carried out, and while it entails considerable trouble upon the hostess, it relieves her of many social obligations at one time. She may invite more guests, for one thing, than could possibly be entertained any other way. The hours may be elastic. To some cards may be sent from "3 to 5;" to others the hours may be "4 to 6," and where there are several girls in the receiving party other cards may be sent to their young men friends and to other girls for the entire evening, with dancing.

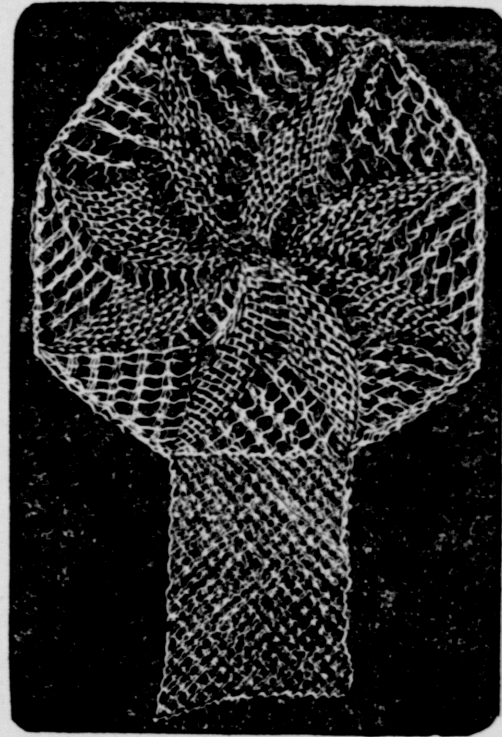

The receiving party stands in line, the ladies handsomely gowned, and colors should harmonize, making a lovely picture of the line—with the lady of the house at which the affair is held at the head. She shakes hands with guests as they enter and introduces them to the other ladies, thus allowing each guest to pass from one to the other.

In an adjoining room, usually the dining-room, refreshments are served by attendants, and here there are usually assembled several intimate friends without hats, whose duties are to see that guests are properly served as they enter. Pretty girls or young matrons are selected to serve frappes, punches, ices or hot chocolate and tea from tables, and the guests are expected to greet and ask for anything of the sort that they like, as well as to help themselves to sandwiches, bonbons and sweetmeats on the table. There is no definite time to remain; ten minutes is long enough, and an hour not too long, but it is good form not to stay after the latest hour named on the cards received. An adieu to the hostess and receiving ladies should always be made if possible when leaving.

A RIBBON IN YOUR HAIR.

Ribbon Is at Last as Much the Rage as Was Prophesied Some Little Time Ago.

Probably the most startling innovation is the "Bath Bow," made popular by Miss Ellaine Terris, and which is having a great vogue in London. This bow is woven with the pompadour, or with parted hair and the coronet braid. The ribbon is run through the hair in front, with just enough showing to make it charmingly becoming. The two ends are then tied in a big bow at the back of the hair, and the effect is decidedly quaint and novel. The bath bow will undoubtedly be popular with the belle of the watering place who feels the want of a bit of ribbon to hold her wind-blown, not to say dampened tresses in place, and she will welcome the possibilities of the bow for binding the inevitable scolding locks. Just the right color of ribbon or gauze placed near the hair brings out all its luster and beauty, but of course the danger of choosing the wrong color is great. All the fads of the moment depend for their success on the taste and judgment of those who indulge in them. The vogue of things in Empire style has brought the Empire bow, a rather severe knot of ribbon, with no loose ends and wired loops. This is usually placed in front of the Empire corsage or forms the shoulder straps to the very deficient Empire sleeve.

Well-Kept Hands.

A piece of pumice stone, to rub off ink and other stains, should be found on every toilet stand, also a lemon to rub on the nails and under them, to remove any stain or discoloration. Then wash the hands perfectly clean, rub with almond cream, in order to make plump and healthy looking, scrape the flesh back from the nails, trim properly and polish with chamois polish. This treatment will insure well-kept hands.

For the Feet.

For perspiring feet dissolve an ounce of sulphate of soda in a pint of hot water and rub the feet over with this every night and morning. Dust a little boric acid into the stockings.

TROUBLED HOSTESS

A FEW SUGGESTIONS THAT SHE MAY FIND WELCOME.

Some Little Dinner Tricks—An Impromptu Guessing Contest That Made Diversion—Household Hints.

After Dinner Tricks.

When fruit has been served with the dessert, and in consequence there are finger bowls on the table, it is curious as well as amusing to wet the middle finger and pass it slowly around the rim of the bowl, keeping a firm pressure. In a moment a low, long drawn out musical tone will be heard; each glass will give out a different tone and the result when several glasses are emitting sounds at the same time is a strange mixture of harmony.

An after dinner trick much enjoyed by children is to put walnut shells filled with brandy or alcohol into their finger bowls and then light them. These burning ships at sea are a wonderful sight, and grown people as well as the children are not averse to watching this exciting end to a dinner party.

Guessing Contest.

An amusing guessing contest was arranged in the most impromptu manner by a hostess at a recent evening party. It afforded no end of fun and astonishment in showing how very little a person knew about the detail of common things and how very deceptive the eye is. Objects were hastily gathered and placed on a table, pencils and paper provided, and 20 minutes allowed in which to answer the following questions:

What is the height of a man's silk hat?
How many seeds in an apple or an orange?
What is the weight of an egg?
How many peanuts in a pint?
How many spots in a pack of cards?
Draw the face of a clock.
What is the diameter of a half dollar?
How many spokes in a wheel?
How many matches in a box?

An anxious housewife asks "how to keep home-made bread moist and for a good recipe for ice cream."

In reply to the first question there are two ways of keeping the bread: one is in a regular tin box with a lid that comes especially for the purpose, and the other and a most satisfactory way is to put the loaves in an earthenware crock, cover with a bread cloth and put a plate over the top.

Personally I like a cream made without eggs, so I give this recipe. To every quart of cream add six tablespoonsful of powdered sugar and any flavoring desired. Many people use corn starch and gelatine, but one of the most successful makers of ice cream told me never to use anything but pure cream and sugar with any fruit, strawberry, banana, nuts or crushed macaroons.

CHARMING ROSE PARTY.

The Invitations Bespeak the Character of the Affair—The Decorations and Refreshments.

A rose party suggests many outdoor delights. The invitations may be done on pink paper in a deep shade, written with red ink. If they are decorated with a painted rose or a bunch of roses so much the better, but in any case they should be on pink paper. The rooms may be decorated in pink cheesecloth festooned about the walls, with large pink paper roses to catch the loops.

Paper roses may be made into garlands and twined about the piazza posts, and hung in wreaths between the arches. Pink lanterns should furnish the light on the piazzas and in the grounds, but in the house the only light should come from pink candles burning under small pink shades.

Real roses may be present in abundance, banked over fireplaces, in corners, and placed in vases and bowls everywhere. Growing rose bushes should be used as a background, combined with palms, and each of the hostesses should carry a bouquet of roses.

Of course, the young girls will be clad in pink gowns or in white combined with pink, and, of course, the refreshments, so far as possible, will be pink.

Pink cheesecloth could be chosen for the table cover, the stuff gathered into graceful folds and caught with small dishes of pink bonbons, cakes with pink icings, and a centerpiece made of pink roses.

A menu that is in harmony would be: Lobster Newburg, brown bread sandwiches, shrimp salad, tongue in aspic, rolled white bread sandwiches tied with pink ribbon, olives stuffed with red peppers, strawberries, ice cream, cake, bonbons. The beverages can be lemonade with strawberries floating in it, sweetened with pink rock candy instead of sugar.

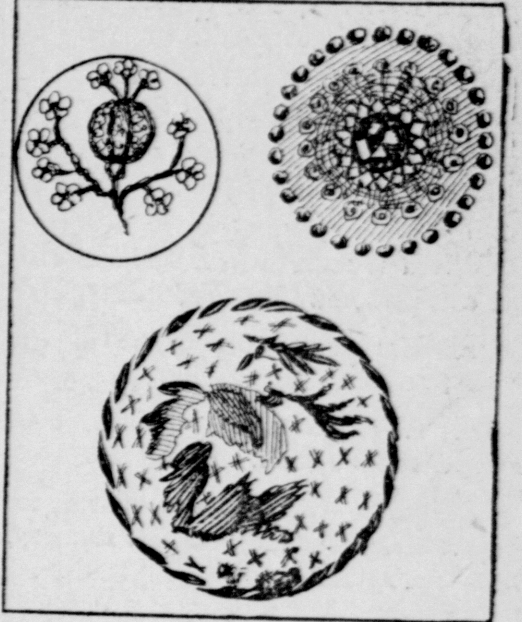

Wedding Gifts.

Wedding gifts should be acknowledged if possible within a day or two after they are received. Of course, a personal note from the bride is the best form, but it is not always possible, so she may relegate the duty to her mother, a sister or a dear friend, but there should always be the enthusiasm embodied in the note. The smallest present should have as warm an appreciation as the most costly. The name of the bridegroom should be associated in the reply of thanks.

VOGUE OF EMBROIDERY.

Observed in the Various Articles of Woman's Apparel—Now We Have the Embroidered Button.

The constancy with which fashion inculcates the introduction of embroidery and yet more embroidery on gowns, blouses, tea jackets, and what not gives lovers of fancy work the best of reasons for keeping their fingers busy, and as the modes of spring declare themselves they will find ever fresh impetus given to their efforts. Blouses are among the first subjects to be considered and here lies an unlimited field for the embroiderer; for not only are the dainty blouses of demi-toilette to be adorned with ornamental stitchery, but it is also to embellish those of the plainer and more shirt-like order which are the indispensable accomplishment of the tailor-made gown. At the shops embroidered blouses are the order of the day, finished, or prepared for working, in canvas, linen, flannel, or silk, ornamented with embroidery or with the cut work which is so greatly in request. Embroidered buttons are a fancy of the day, and these show a range of charming designs, a few of which we illustrate. These can be carried out in any coloring desired, or can be had as traced patterns only, to be made up when worked. A propos of buttons, a London dealer is showing some hand-made washing buttons for linen blouses and dresses which have a peculiar interest as well as beauty of their own. They are the work of the peasant girls on a Polish estate, where, under the auspices of the lady of the manor, the work of button making, carried on while the workers are "minding the cows," is being developed into a remunerative industry. The buttons are made of white linen neatly stretched over metal rings, and closely covered over with lace stitches, and are both strong and extremely pretty.

KNITTED STAR QUILT.

Handwork Again Appreciated, and She That Can Knit Has an Accomplishment Worth While.

Cast on eight stitches with thread doubled, three stitches on each of two needles, and two on the third, and tie the ends. Knit once around, each single stitch, and you have 16 stitches. Every alternate or even row is knitted plain throughout, hence need not be mentioned.
First row—Over, knit two, repeat around.
Third row—Over, knit three, repeat.
Fifth row—Over, knit four, repeat.
Seventh row—Over, knit five, repeat.
Ninth row—Over, knit seven, repeat.
Eleventh row—Over, knit seven, repeat.

There are now eight stitches between each open row, and this is the widest part of the star, which begins to decrease as follows:

Thirteenth row—Over, knit, one, over, narrow, knit five, repeat.
Fifteenth row—Over, knit one, (over narrow) twice, knit four, repeat.
Seventeenth row—Over, knit one, (over narrow) three times, knit three.
Nineteenth row—Over, knit one, (over, narrow) four times, knit two repeat.

Twenty-first row—Over, knit one, (over, narrow) five times, knit one, repeat.

Twenty-third row—Over, knit one, (over, narrow) six times, repeat.

Twenty-fifth row—Cast off loosely, so that the work will not pull or draw, until you have 14 stitches on the left-hand needle, and one stitch on the right. With these stitches knit nine rows or squares of basket work—that is, for the first row, purl three, knit three; purl three, knit three, purl three; knit back with knit three, purl three; then knit another row like first, and repeat. In joining, turn all the basket work in the same direction for first row, and in opposite direction for alternate rows. The little squares of basket work then fill the spaces between the eight-sided figures formed by the stars.

"R. S. V. P."

The letters stand for the words "Respond, s'il vous plait," which, in English, means, "Reply, if you please." Either a regret or an acceptance to a card party should be sent within a day after receiving it, as the hostess may have to fill the place if the former is sent.

SULPHUR VANQUISHES THE ADA BOYS ONCE MORE

Ada lost for the third time to Sulphur Wednesday afternoon, 8 to 5.

While the visitors held the lead throughout, the locals had what the grandstand thought was a look in the eighth inning, then three runs were batted in, and again in the ninth when Sulphur's third baseman made two errors and the team started up.

In the eighth, after Foster struck out, Baldwin put a clean single over second, and scored on Luttrell's two bagger into right. "Peewee" took third on Schebaun's line drive between second and first, Schebaun stealing second. Both were scored on Kaiss' scratch to third, but the scoring stopped.

In the ninth, Gregory got first on Hardy's error, but was thrown out at second on Foster's pop-up which Shaw got on the bound. Foster was caught at second by Mackey on Baldwin's easy grounder. Baldwin stole second and third, and scored on Hardy's error. "Peck" redeemed himself, however, by a brilliant running catch of Schebaun's foul fly, and the game was over.

Thrown From a Wagon.

George Bardell, the accommodating night clerk at the Harris Hotel, met with a painful accident Thursday morning. He was out in the country riding on the running gear of a wagon drawn by two mules when they jumped a small but deep ditch in the road, throwing him to the ground. One wheel passed over his body breaking his arm and collar bone.

STATEHOOD WILL HELP FARMERS TO ORGANIZE

Guthrie, June 28.—Among the important benefits that will come to Indian Territory with statehood is that of complete organization of farmers, such as is now found in all counties of Oklahoma.

C. A. McNabb, secretary of the board of agriculture, has just returned from Indian Territory where he worked in the interests of Oklahoma Agricultural exhibit for the Jamestown exposition.

Mr. McNabb says that all commercial organizations of Indian Territory are giving their aid toward collecting material for the exhibit and that the combination of both Oklahoma and Indian Territory products will, in all probability, rank fully as high as did the Oklahoma exhibit at St. Louis.

Through the Oklahoma board of Agriculture immediate steps are to be taken to thoroughly organize the Territory farmers.

Shudder at the Name.

Several highly cultured persons from the east shudder hearing the names given by the primitive cowboys to some of the creeks in this country. We have Skeleton, Bottle, Wild Horse, Bell Cow, Skull, Red Mule, Gopher, Mustang, Ghost and several other rather oddly named creeks. The less euphonious and to some extent blasphemously named streamlet is dashing, splashing, rushing, tumbling Hellroaring creek in Pawnee county. Even the religious people of the triangular county have become us to the irreverently sounding name of the most romantic tributary of the salty, lower Cimarron. Several protracted M. E. campmeetings have been held on the rocky banks of the streamlet, and the campmeetings on classic Hellroaring creek are always extensively advertised in newspapers and on posters.—State Capital.

LIQUOR MAN PREDICTS STATE WILL BE DRY

Oklahoma City, Ok., June 28.—"You can put it down as a business proposition," said a prominent traveling man for a wholesale liquor house here today, "that the new state of Oklahoma is going to be prohibition. You wouldn't expect that statement from me, I'll admit, and for the sake of my business I am loath to make it, but I have studied conditions as they actually exist, not as I would like to have them from a business standpoint."

According to the prohibition provision as contained in the bill admitting Oklahoma to the Union, the new state known as that part, Indian Territory and all Indian reservations in Oklahoma will be restricted from the sale of liquor for 21 years.

"I have talked with a good many people in both territories about the prohibition movement, and I will venture to say that there is not a school house in either territory but what has a temperance organization of some kind. From the Indian Territory will come the greatest opposition ever experienced between one section and another because of the present provision. Take for instance Chickasha and El Reno. The people of Chickasha are not going to submit to El Reno's selling whiskey because they claim it will take business away from them. Then the people of Indian Territory will make the broader contention that one half of the state cannot be licensed to sell whiskey while the other half is prohibited from it. If the people of the Indian Territory are admitted to full citizenship, regardless of race, color, or previous condition of servitude, then there's no way to prevent the Indians from obtaining all the whiskey they want, the provision named above will not be effective. You will see when the constitutional convention comes that every delegate from the Indian Territory will stand pat for absolute prohibition, and I will venture to say that half of those from Oklahoma will stand with the Indian Territory fellows. From a business standpoint, if not from any reasons of sentiment, I will say, they will do it."

STANDARD OIL FIGHTERS NOW IN OKLAHOMA CITY

Two men who have been very much in the public eye of late are in Oklahoma City at the present time, one of whom is credited by Ida Tarbell, in her magazine stories of the Standard oil company, published in McClure's magazine, with having started the movement which has brought that corporation into the limelight of late. This individual is Frank Monett, formerly attorney general of the state of Ohio, who owes his failure of re-election directly to Standard oil influence.

Mr. Monett is here with J. C. Stephenson, assistant attorney general of the state of Arkansas. These two men are here on a secret mission, the nature of which they will not make public and concerning which no information could be obtained from the law firm of Crockett & Johnson, with which they have been noticed in frequent conferences during the past few days.

It is believed the distinguished visitors are here digging up evidence to be used against the great oil octopus. Mr. Monett is said to be in the employ of the government in prosecuting the big trust company, and Judge Stephenson is co-operating with the attorney general of the state of Arkansas in prosecuting the trusts in Arkansas and other states.

As attorney general of the state of Ohio, Mr. Monett drove the Standard Oil company out of the Buckeye state. In retaliation he was defeated at a subsequent election. It is said that, wherever he goes, he is constantly followed by slouths of the big corporation under instructions to note and report his every movement. It is likely that Attorneys Monett and Stephenson will be in Oklahoma City for several days.—Oklahoman.

Tennis Tournament.

Only one full set was played Wednesday afternoon in the tournament with the following results: Epperson and Holt playing the winners of the first gentlemen's double, Eddleman and Haraway, 6-1. The game between Warren and Browall vs Epperson and Holt was not finished but will be at some later date.

This morning at 7:30 the ladies assembled on the tennis court for another interesting game—Misses Francis Deacon and Vera Fulton vs Misses Edna Fulton and Mildred Timberlake; after many "love games" the score stood "deuce" set.

After the game was finished the score keeper (a gentleman) challenged the winners of the last set, beating them 2-0 sets. The ladies are improving wonderfully in the "love" game and will soon be able to play the "deuce" game.

Another official game will be played this afternoon according to the program of the week's tournament.

A large crowd of men left this afternoon for Sandy where they will spend the night fishing.

UNDER THIS PARAGRAPH OFFICERS WILL HOLD OVER

Washington, June 28.—The paragraph in the general deficiency bill conveying into the United States treasury the appropriation for the legislative assembly expenses of the territory of Oklahoma continues as follows:

"And no election for members of the legislative assembly, or for any other official authorized by the laws of the said territory, or delegate to congress shall be held under and in pursuance of said laws in the year of 1906; and all persons heretofore elected to any of said offices, now serving and performing the duties thereof, shall continue to serve in their respective offices and perform all the duties thereof, with all the power and authority conferred upon them by the laws of the said territory, until such are terminated by the laws of the state of Oklahoma or until the officers provided for under the constitution of said state are duly elected and qualified. Provided, that in case no constitution is adopted and ratified, in accordance with the provisions of an act for the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory into the union as a state, then said territorial officers of Oklahoma shall continue to discharge the duties of their respective offices until successors are duly elected and qualified."

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

To show what we of the south are doing it can be said, according to the latest statistics that the value of the south's cotton crops for the last five years was $2,974,000,000, or $395,000,000 in excess of the total and gold and silver production of the world for the same period. This was an average annual increase of $200,000,000 over the value of the South's cotton crop for the preceding five years. This $1,000,000,000 of increase in cotton in five years has lifted from this section its entire indebtedness and placed it on solid ground for the wonderful expansion that is daily being noted.—Muskogee Phoenix.

HER PRAYER FOR MAMMA.

Special Clause in Tot's Supplication Prompted by Fear of De-railment.

A Walbrook mother a few days ago before starting on a trip to Atlantic City told her two little daughters, whom circumstances forced her to leave at home, of the speed with which the great engines would hurry her train to the resort by the ocean and of miles and miles of glistening rails over which she would travel before reaching her destination, relates the Baltimore Herald.

That afternoon, after kissing the children good-by she asked them to remember her in their evening devotion, to which request the youngsters tearfully acquiesced. When the usual bed-

NOTES FOR CHILDREN.

Before the Chicago Tuberculosis institute, held recently, one of the chief questions under discussion was: "How to rid the Schools of Tuberculosis?" In this connection Dr. S. A. Knopf, of the New York health department, gave the following advice for children:

Do not spit except in a spittoon, or a piece of cloth, or a handkerchief, used for that purpose alone. On your return home have the cloth burned by your mother, or the handkerchief put in water until ready for the wash.

Never spit on a slate, floor, sidewalk or playground.

Do not put your fingers in your mouth.

Do not pick your nose or wipe it on your hand or sleeve.

Do not wet your finger in your mouth when turning the leaves of books.

Do not put pencils in your mouth or wet them with your lips.

Do not put anything in your mouth except food and drink.

Do not swap apple cores, candy, chewing gum, half eaten food, whistles, bean blowers, or anything that is put in the mouth.

Peel or wash your fruit before eating it.

Do not kiss any one on the mouth.

Never cough or sneeze in a person's face. Turn your face to one side, or hold a handkerchief before your mouth.

Keep your face and hands and finger nails clean; wash your hands with soap and water before each meal.—Farmers' Review.

"And you say you lost your position by the great earthquake in San Francisco?" inquired the kind lady.

"Yes, mum," replied Frayed Franklin.

AMERICAN ARTISTS ABROAD

Their Merit Recognized and Rewarded Earlier Than It Is at Home.

Once more an American artist's picture holds the place of honor at the exhibition of the Royal Academy in London. Sargent had attained that honor; now it is Abbey's turn, with a picture distinctly American in subject, representing Columbus landing in the new world. Several other well-known American artists figure among the notable exhibitors. In the two annual picture shows now open in Paris, the same fact is true, reports the New York World.

American artists frequently complain, as do singers and musicians, that the surest way to distinction at home is recognition abroad. The protest implies that merit is not so readily accepted here as merit is in France and England.

The distinction attained by Sargent in London has done more than all his early successors in this country to assure his preeminence. The same may be said to be true of Abbey, although fame came to him easy as an illustrator. Something may be due to the circumstance that for years both have done most of their work abroad. Beyond a doubt, however, art is viewed far more hospitably in Paris and London than in New York. We have yet no art exhibitions that occupy so large a place in popular life as the regular shows of the two foreign capitals.

It is noteworthy also that more contemporary American artists have room in the Luxembourg museum, where living painters must await admission to the Louvre, than in our own Metropolitan. The Paris list counts about 25, among them Whistler, Sargent, Winslow Homer, La Farge, Alexander Harrison, Henry Mosler, Walter MacEwen, Carl Meichers, Miss Cassatt, Edwin L. Weeks and H. O. Tanner.

Under the old management American artists were treated with suspicion at the Metropolitan. It was sometimes difficult to get their works through the museum's doors even as gifts.

Fortunate, all that is being rapidly changed. Sir Purdon Clarke advocates the necessity of building up a representative American collection. Mr. George A. Hearn has donated a large fund, of which the income is reserved for the purchase of American works. It is a curious commentary on American taste that it was not until a foreign director was put in charge of the Metropolitan that American artists were promised something of the same public recognition they receive from the French government.

TURKEY WITH WOODEN LEG

Tale of a Gobbler That Smacks Somewhat of the Munchausen Flavor.

In most communities there are certain persons who possess peculiar characteristics, habits and beliefs, and this is true of the long shore sportsman of the old Mother State as of persons dwelling elsewhere, says Forest and Stream.

Many of the old time sportsmen still carry and use their muzzle loading guns, which cannot be displaced by more modern arms. They usually manage to bag a good many birds and other game, and this is chiefly due, it is believed, to their knowledge of the habits of the game. They seldom go out without finding something.

A story is told of one gunner who if any of the shot should fall from his hands while loading his gun will at once return home and make no further effort to hunt that day, believing as he says, that those lost were his luck shot, and it would be useless for him to continue the hunt.

Another, whom I will call here Capt. Pete, is a sailor and all round sportsman. He loves to tell of his adventures with his dogs and gun, and is seldom seen without them. He tells many stories about the accuracy of Sweet Lips, his gun, and declares he can beat any man "a-shootin' for a turkey in the United States of Virginnny."

On the occasion of a turkey hunt near the Rappahannock river Capt. Pete claims to have shot a 40-pound wild turkey, for which he was offered $4 cash. The gray whiskers on the turkey's breast were 18 inches long, and he had one wooden leg. Here Capt. Pete gives a laugh that could be heard a half mile away. "Saw, he was the biggest turkey I ever saw. There were 19 fellows in the bunch of us, and four others besides, and all ate a sumptuous meal from one-half of his breast."

Uncle Pete says he cannot account for that one wooden leg unless that turkey had been previously owned by some one as a pet wild turkey.

Natural Arm Chair.

A gardener in Korea has formed a natural arm-chair by twisting a growing vine to the required shape. It is also studded with seeds of the ginkgo tree, which have grown into the fibers of the vine. After the chair was fashioned in this way it was cut from the ground, dried and polished until it resembled mahogany. It is 3 feet 4 inches high, 25 inches wide and weighs over 100 pounds.

IN CANDY BUSINESS

NO WASTE AS SCRAPS ARE ALWAYS MADE USE OF.

Seasoned Confectioners Considered the Best—Maker of the Sweets Must Be an Artist.

There is this similarity between the candy business and the iron business—the scrap is not allowed to go to waste. An observer who had an idea that candy manufacturers must have to stand a lot of loss because candies get stale, took the trouble to investigate and learned that his idea was wrong, says the New York Sun.

The big candy makers ship to their agents throughout the country at stated intervals, usually of a week, their standard confections, and all not sold at the expiration of the interval are returned to the factory as scrap. As the candy is mostly sugar, and sugar is as indestructible as iron, it is only a question for the candy maker of getting the sugar value out of the scrap. It is impossible to work over the candy in its original form, but it can be used in many ways. For example, the chief use to which stale chocolate is put is in making caramels and other chewy confections.

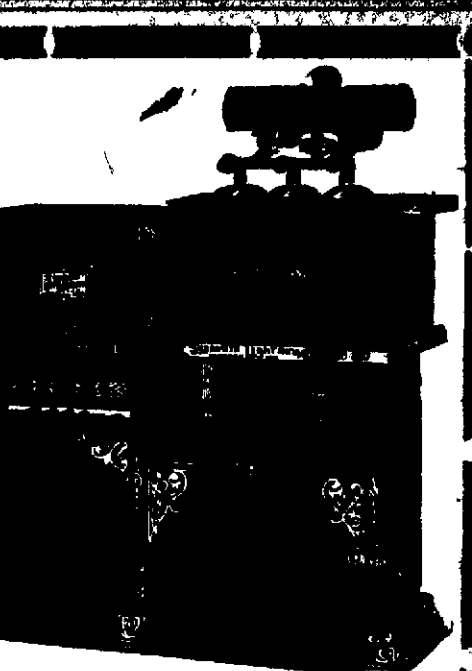

It's a mistaken idea that candy must be fresh to be good. One manufacturer who makes only for the trade and confines himself chiefly to high-class chocolates and bonbons said that candy wasn't fit to eat until it had been seasoned for at least ten days. For his own use—and he is a great lover of candy, despite the general belief that no cook cares for his own messes—he keeps chocolates about a month before eating them.

This man has no patience with those who assert that colored candy is poisonous. His argument is simple. As he puts it:

"What's the use of putting poison in candy when natural and harmless coloring matter costs less? Who'd put

NEW JERSEY 'RICKISHAS.

Vehicle of Yankee Make Has Invaded the Orient with Good Results.

That characteristic vehicle of the orient, the jirikisha, is drawn by a yellow coolie in Japan, a brown Hindu in India, a black Zulu in South Africa; but look between the shafts of the 'rikisha in any of these countries, and you will probably find the same name plate—that of a vehicle manufacturer in New Jersey. The Yankee jirikishas has invaded the east, and its invasion promises to result in a permanent occupation of countries where cheap labor would seem to forbid sales of American goods.

The Yankee 'rikisha manufacturer competes on prices first. He sells vehicles as good as the native product at as low as $16 and no higher than $40. American factory methods permit turning them out in large numbers on the duplicate system. He also competes in quality, making jirikishas with bal bearings, bicycle wheels and cushion tires at $30.

Different types of 'rikisha are made for different countries. The vehicle is common in Lagos, Ceylon, and many other localities, each of which has its preferences in the way of weight, height, hoods, bells, lamps, colors, and cushions. The New Jersey factory also supplies the "pousse-pousse" used in Madagascar. It is a variety of jirikisha with hood and springs.

Another is the "Korean cab," which is nothing more than an improvement on the clumsy Chinese wheelbarrow with its single wheel, familiar as a passenger vehicle in all Chinese cities. The "Korean cab" has a single wheel fitted with a pneumatic tire, and seats one passenger, the seat being placed high over the wheel. Coolies in front and behind balance and propel it, and the vehicle is capable of good speed.

When the Yankee 'rikisha was introduced on the west coast of Africa, it was so much lighter than the vehicles previously known that the first Zulu who drew one presently stopped, lifted the vehicle and its passenger to his head, and wanted to carry it that way being easier. American wheelbarrows were introduced about the same time and a contractor who supplied them to his Fanti laborers, returning in a few hours, found them all being carried water-jar fashion.

FIND HEART OF RAMESES.

Vital Organ of Great Egyptian King Preserved in Vase for 3,164 Years.

A recent issue of the Comptes Rendus of the Paris academy contains an account of the successful identification of the heart of Rameses II., the Sesotris of the Greeks, after having been preserved since 1258 B. C. in soda and resinoid antiseptics.

Some months ago, says the New York Times, the council of the National Museum of the Louvre acquired possession of the four vases in blue enamel which contain the viscera and heart of Rameses II., and bear large medallions representing the names and attributes of the king.

The directors of the Egyptian museum desired absolute confirmation as to the contents of the vases and entrusted the examination of their contents to M. Lortet, who, with his colleagues, Professors Hugouenq, Renaut and Rigan, made a careful physiological examination. Three of the vases contained bandages of linen tightly compacted and hardened by the carbonate of soda and aromatic resinous substances of reddish color, which had been employed as antiseptics and had probably contained the stomach, intestines and liver of the great king. These viscera, however, were only found to be represented by a quantity of granular matter, mixed with a large proportion of powdered carbonate of soda and so could not be identified.

The fourth vase, which was fitted with a lid or cover adorned with the head of a jackal, proved to contain the heart. This organ was found transformed into a kind of oval plate, eight centimeters long and four centimeters wide. The substance of the heart was hornlike and the saw had to be used in obtaining sections of it for examination and finally the razor, so as to reduce these sections to the attenuation necessary for microscopic examination.

Under the microscope these sections gave unmistakable evidence of the muscular fibers peculiar to the heart, especially characterized by being arranged in bundles of such fibers, crossing each other. Since this special muscular arrangement is not found in any other part of the body except the tongue and as the mummy of Rameses II., which is preserved at Cairo, contains the tongue intact, the experts have no doubt whatever that the vase actually contained the heart of Rameses II. flattened and transformed into a hornlike substance by its long sojourn in the soda preservatives.

King Rameses II. died 1258 years before the Christian era and hence some 3,164 years have elapsed since his heart was first embalmed.

Men Away from Home Miss Familiar Chores—Women Have Small Resources to Pass the Time—The Man with a Fad Most Fortunate—Book Reading Unsatisfactory in a Deserted House—Summer Time Hardest on the Man Whose Family Goes Away.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.
(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowler.)
A cat in a strange garret, a dog that has lost its owner, a fish out of water, each in turn symbolizes the extreme of discomfort and misery. Discontent with one's environment is wretchedness.

Nobody who is intensely lonely can be anything but forlorn, although he may put a brave face on the situation and hide from the people he meets the yearning he has for home companionship. Men often feel the pangs of home-sickness and rebel against the dullness of solitude when their neighbors suspect them of no tedium and suppose them to be quite free and easy in their independence. A married man whose wife and children have gone away for a summer holiday, leaving him to hold the fort alone, picking up meals at clubs or restaurants, and sleeping in a house that echoes to the tread and has ghosts prowling about in every shadowy corner, is much to be pitied. Scores of such men go to business every day during the heated terms in our cities, and at night return to sleep in houses as silent as the tomb. They do not complain, they write jovial letters to the absent ones, and they make a pretense of engaging in such pastimes as are open to them, but the summer wears on their nerves.

A boy or man away from home for the first time, missing the familiar chores at morning or evening, and the mother-brooding that has been so constant and so sweet from childhood on, finds a boarding house among entire strangers as desolate as the desert.

What diversions are there for the lonely man? What shall Adam do in an Eden where there is no genial comrade to take him by the hand and make him feel that he is of much account?

Ever, left to herself, finds plenty of occupation for brain and fingers. She may busy herself with delicate laundry work not to be entrusted to the rough handling of servants. Stocks, lace handkerchiefs, cuffs and collars and the various eccentrics of a feminine toilette, may be periodically renovated in her own room, if she have the needful apparatus. She has stockings to darn, mending to do, shirt-waists to make, hats to trim, embroidery to fill her leisure, and always endless letters to write and sometimes books to read. A woman has the advantage over a man in a multitude of small resources, trifling in themselves, but essentially worth while in their results, and excellent as things that pass away time that might be empty and lonely.

Notwithstanding a general opinion to the contrary, a man is more dependent on the society of others and on the friendship of his equals than is the average woman.

When a man has a fad or a hobby or some knack at cabinet making or upholstery, he is vastly better off than his neighbor who understands only the single round of the day's work. A fellow who plays a musical instrument, whether it be banjo, mandolin or piano, can always while away solitary evenings, but the man who is most to be envied is the one who can take an old, disreputable and broken-down bit of furniture, a desk, a table, a sofa, and spend long and patient hours on rubbing it down, polishing and restoring it, so that he serves a double purpose; not only does he save the enormous expense charged by the trade for renovating antique furniture, but he makes his wife or sister the envy of all her friends by the marvels of his workmanship.

In a plain little parsonage in the mountains, never mind where, there are chairs and dressing tables that anyone in the smart set might covet, evolved from the rubbish heap by the deft hand and skillful labor of a member of the family, who never finds time hanging heavily or knows the meaning of solitude, except in the sense of privilege and benefit.

A naturalist, whatever his field, is master of moods and often considers companionship superfluous. If one is devoted to the study of birds or butterflies or beetles, one need not dread a hermit life. Although one's home be in a crowded town, there are suburbs within reach and the man who would amuse his leisure by any department of scientific investigation, however humble, will not complain of loneliness.

Strange to say, although reading be one's passion, it is apt to pall in a house where one is the solitary occupant. The fire on the hearth in winter may give cheer and take away the sense of absolute seclusion, and a pipe is a good deal of company, but in summer, with windows open and a careless hearth, even the pipe is a disappointing makeshift for a familiar household presence. One loves to read if there are people moving about, if somebody sits near with a bit of needlework, or if in another room there is the low-voiced talk of young people who are a world to themselves, or if in the nursery above there are little rosy children fast asleep. But a book read in the silence of a deserted house often adds emphasis to homesick yearning for company.

Of course, the man who is alone at home may write letters. Whether or not he does so depends on his facility in description and in the presence or absence of a gift of humor. A man deficient in the sense of humor loses nine-tenths of the happiness that might be his. Few situations are without a side that sparkles with fun for those who can discern it. A young man who lost everything in the San Francisco disaster wrote home to his people that for climatic reasons he had crossed the bay. "It is cooler over here," he said. And the letter in which he recounted a catalogue of misfortunes real enough to crush a weaker spirit, provoked irresistible laughter by its mischievous sallies. The man who sees the fun in things and who refuses to be tragic when there is the slightest chance to be comic is immeasurably more sensible and more fortunate than his fellow mortals who are nothing if not solemn and serious.

A good plan for husbands and sons abandoned in summer by their kinsfolk, as is our American custom, might be to pool their loneliness. It is not always safe for reasons of health and because of the accidents of sudden illness that sometimes seize those who are ordinarily well, for anyone to remain entirely alone in a house at night.

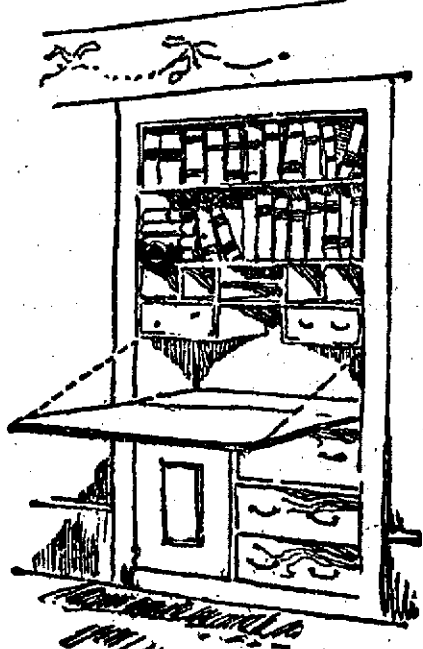

Few men fear the midnight burglar. With the silver in the safe deposit vault and the jewels in the possession of their wearers, there is little to tempt thieves, unless they are of the variety who steal lead pipes and burrow in the cellar. But two or three neighbors living together for a few weeks, with a housekeeper engaged to see that they have the material comforts of home, might defy loneliness and emerge from the season which to them affords only a fortnight's vacation none the worse for its experiences.

AN UNUSED DOORWAY.

Of Decided Value as Made Use Of by Either of the Means Here Suggested.

In the sitting-rooms of many houses built years ago are doorways which are quite unnecessary, remarks a writer in the Farmers' Review. Such a doorway can very easily be made to form a most useful piece of furniture.

Here are two good methods suggested by the New York World. In both the door is removed altogether and the top filled in with shelves, while the lower part in one is filled in with pigeon-holes, drawers and a writing flap above, a cupboard and drawers filling the space below, and forms a complete and most useful bureau, with drawers and shelves in which to stow all the belongings that, for writing purposes, one needs to have near at hand.

In the case of the other, the owner needed a place in which to stow large mounted photographs and sketches. The lower part of the recess is devoted to this, while above come drawers for smaller photographs, and above again shelves for books of reference. The top shelf, not being required at the moment, is filled with old china jars, and the whole effect is delightful.

Announcement Cards.

The announcement means that the wedding has taken place, therefore it cannot be sent until after the ceremony. Cards of announcement may be ready days beforehand; they may be addressed, sealed, stamped and in entire readiness for posting or sending in any preferred way, but not one should be sent until after the marriage ceremony has actually taken place and the couple really married. Announcement cards should be sent to all friends and acquaintances.

Hang-Nails.

Hang nails are possibly caused by the way you trim the sides of your nails; if you cut them too deeply there is nothing to support the flesh of the finger, and it covers the nail while growing; trim to leave sufficient nail to prevent the growing over, and there will be no hang nails. Use sharp nail scissors and cut the hang nail without making it sore in the least, and keep it clipped as it grows; never pull them out. Use warm vaseline for the nails.

To Remove Sunburn.

Barley boiled in water until the consistency of rich cream and used on the face will remove sunburn and leave the skin soft and white.

THE FASHIONABLE BOLERO

A Touch of Colored Velvet Seen on Lace Waists—Boleros Mark Late Mode.

One thing seen on the lace waists and lace boleros is a touch of colored velvet. On the boleros it is set in a little stiff collar piece around inside the neck and in little strips drawn through buckles or under buttons down the front. One finished with light blue had a little bias piece drawn through a central piece in the pattern at the back. It was put on horizontally and the ends were drawn out through small buckles, matched by the pieces in front.

A smart way of a useful little bolero is to have it cut almost like the old jacket bodies with a long fitted point in front, as though a corselet belt were cut in one with it, and fastening over just at the waist line in front with a big button of the same stuff. Say it is of one of the soft wools or of black moire. Two short straps, as it were, detach themselves from the front of the jacket, just below where it meets in a V shape, and do not close at the waist, but button down with rounded tab ends, and similar button on each side of the center or belt button tab.

One of the best ideas is to make a separate lawn lining for the little boleros to linen suits. A lawn bolero is cut exactly to the pattern of the linen bolero, sleeves and all, except that enough is taken off the depth to allow of a knife plating of lace edged lawn. This is an inch and a half deep when finished and projects only a speck from under the jacket, as frills are not deep this year. The lining is fitted into the jacket-seams inward and only needs to be fastened at the armholes, and has the inestimable advantage of washing and ironing separately, not to mention the saving in work.

FASHIONABLE PARASOLS.

Before going to work to cover or rejuvenate an old parasol with white, enamel the stick, as the white handle makes part of the prettiness. Other pretty handles are in the form of parrots and other gay tropical birds. They are highly colored and the frame is covered with silk to correspond. Chinese silks are one of the new coverings, some of the patterns being as effective as if painted. One of the convenient fashions for furnishing one's own parasol is the floppy ruffle, which again is put around the edge and which as often as not is finished with little tufts as it would be on a petticoat.

White cloth tailor makes form a part of the smartest wardrobe. Outing and yachting suits to which there are three pieces are popular in white serge. The natty little jackets trimmed with touches of white, dark blue, and brilliant red are to be worn over white linen or scarlet silk waists, while the shirt-waist made on severe lines is to be worn with the same skirt. Fancier tailor suits are trimmed with lace as if they were linens. One of the prettiest was made with a group of tufts and a row of insertion of Irish lace set above it. The zouave is cut quite short and is finished with a roll collar of white velvet, and has a little vest of Irish lace to match the skirt. The zouave is attached to the skirt by pretty buttons set on at both back and front.

Hosiery Styles.

The new stockings are worthy of note. They are embroidered and built upon openwork designs and they match the costume. This makes them very interesting from a woman's point of view, for they give her certain opportunities in dress which she did not have before. And the same with her shoes, which come in all colors. She can get them in kid, patent leather, in suede, in linen and in cloth.

"Princess" Materials.

Taffeta is the ideal material for the Princess skirt and jacket. But a great many of these suits are being made of foulard, and they are in all colors, brown, blue, gray and tan, for the foulards come this season in every color under the sun. And they are also in all materials, chaille, cloth, novelty goods and white linen. Every material is impressed into the service.

SOCIAL OBSERVANCES.

The Afternoon Reception, the Receiving Party in Harmony of Color—Refreshment Room.

A "high tea" is only another name for the "at home" or afternoon reception. That is, the same rules for receiving guests and in their entertaining hold good to a great degree.

Perhaps in the matter of receiving there is more formality in the matter; usually a hostess asks several friends or members of the family to "stand" with her, as well as the special guest or perhaps young daughter or daughter-in-law about to be introduced.

An afternoon reception is a charming affair if well planned and carried out, and, while it entails considerable trouble upon the hostess, it relieves her of many social obligations at one time. She may invite more guests, for one thing, than could possibly be entertained any other way. The hours may be elastic. To some cards may be sent from "3 to 5," to others the hours may be "4 to 6," and where there are several girls in the receiving party other cards may be sent to their young men friends and to other girls for the entire evening, with dancing.

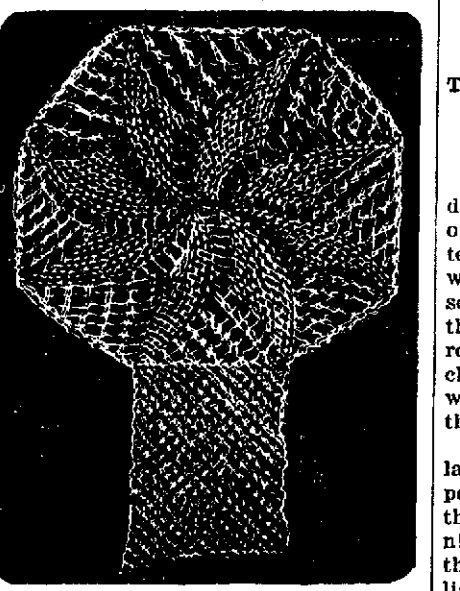

The receiving party stands in line, the ladies handsomely gowned, and colors should harmonize, making a lovely picture of the line—with the lady of the house at which the affair is held at the head. She shakes hands with guests as they enter and introduces them to the other ladies, thus allowing each guest to pass from one to the other.

In an adjoining room, usually the dining-room, refreshments are served by attendants, and here there are usually assembled several intimate friends without hats, whose duties are to see that guests are properly served as they enter. Pretty girls or young matrons are selected to serve frappes, punches, ices or hot chocolate and tea from tables, and the guests are expected to greet and ask for anything of the sort that they like, as well as to help themselves to sandwiches, bonbons and sweetmeats on the table. There is no definite time to remain; ten minutes is long enough, and an hour not too long, but it is good form not to stay after the latest hour named on the cards received. An adieu to the hostess and receiving ladies should always be made if possible when leaving.

A RIBBON IN YOUR HAIR.

Ribbon Is at Last as Much the Rage as Was Prophesied Some Little Time Ago.

Probably the most startling innovation is the "Bath Bow," made popular by Miss Ellaine Terris, and which is having a great vogue in London. This bow is woven with the pompadour, or with parted hair and the coronet braid. The ribbon is run through the hair in front, with just enough showing to make it charmingly becoming. The two ends are then tied in a big bow at the back of the hair, and the effect is decidedly quaint and novel. The bath bow will undoubtedly be popular with the belle of the watering place who feels the want of a bit of ribbon to hold her wind-blown, not to say dampened tresses in place, and she will welcome the possibilities of the bow for binding the inevitable scolding locks. Just the right color of ribbon or gauze placed near the hair brings out all its luster and beauty, but of course the danger of choosing the wrong color is great. All the fads of the moment depend for their success on the taste and judgment of those who indulge in them. The vogue of things in Empire style has brought the Empire bow, a rather severe knot of ribbon, with no loose ends and wired loops. This is usually placed in front of the Empire corsage or forms the shoulder straps to the very deficient Empire sleeve.

Well-Kept Hands.

A piece of pumice stone, to rub off ink and other stains, should be found on every toilet stand, also a lemon to rub on the nails and under them, to remove any stain or discoloration. Then wash the hands perfectly clean, rub with almond cream, in order to make plump and healthy looking, scrape the flesh back from the nails, trim properly, and polish with camellia polish. This treatment will insure well-kept hands.

For the Feet.

For perspiring feet dissolve an ounce of sulphate of soda in a pint of hot water and rub the feet over with this every night and morning. Dust a little boracic acid into the stockings.

TROUBLED HOSTESS

A FEW SUGGESTIONS THAT SHE MAY FIND WELCOME.

Some Little Dinner Tricks—An Impromptu Guessing Contest That Made Diversion—Household Hints.

After Dinner Tricks.

When fruit has been served with the dessert, and in consequence there are finger bowls on the table, it is curious as well as amusing to wet the middle finger and pass it slowly around the rim of the bowl, keeping a firm pressure. In a moment a low, long drawn out musical tone will be heard; each glass will give out a different tone and the result when several glasses are emitting sounds at the same time is a strange mixture of harmony.

An after dinner trick much enjoyed by children is to put walnut shells filled with brandy or alcohol into their finger bowls and then light them. These burning shells at sea are a wonderful sight, and grown people as well as the children are not averse to watching this exciting end to a dinner party.

Guessing Contest.

An amusing guessing contest was arranged in the most impromptu manner by a hostess at a recent evening party. It afforded no end of fun and astonishment in showing how very little a person knew about the detail of common things and how very deceptive the eye is. Objects were hastily gathered and placed on a table, pencils and paper provided, and 20 minutes allowed in which to answer the following questions:

What is the height of a man's silk hat?
How many seeds in an apple or an orange?
What is the weight of an egg?
How many peanuts in a pint?
How many spots in a pack of cards?
Draw the face of a clock.
What is the diameter of a half dollar?
How many spokes in a wheel?
How many matches in a box?

An anxious housewife asks "how to keep home-made bread moist and for a good recipe for ice cream."

In reply to the first question there are two ways of keeping the bread; one is in a regular tin box with a lid that comes especially for the purpose, and the other and a most satisfactory way is to put the loaves in an earthenware crock, cover with a bread cloth and put a plate over the top.

Personally I like a cream made without eggs, so I give this recipe. To every quart of cream add six tablespoonsful of powdered sugar and any flavoring desired. Many people use corn starch and gelatine, but one of the most successful makers of ice cream told me never to use anything but pure cream and sugar with any fruit, strawberry, banana, nuts or crushed macaroons.

MADAME MERRI.

CHARMING ROSE PARTY.

The Invitations Bespeak the Character of the Affair—The Decorations and Refreshments.

A rose party suggests many outdoor delights. The invitations may be done on pink paper in a deep shade, written with red ink. If they are decorated with a painted rose or a bunch of roses so much the better, but in any case they should be on pink paper. The rooms may be decorated in pink cheesecloth festooned about the walls, with large pink paper roses to catch the loops.

Paper roses may be made into garlands and twined about the piazza posts, and hung in wreaths between the arches. Pink lanterns should furnish the light on the piazzas and in the grounds, but in the house the only light should come from pink candles burning under small pink shades.

Real roses may be present in abundance, banked over fireplaces, in corners, and placed in vases and bowls everywhere. Growing rose bushes should be used as a background, combined with palms, and each of the hostesses should carry a bouquet of roses.

Of course, the young girls will be clad in pink gowns or in white combined with pink, and, of course, the refreshments, so far as possible, will be pink.

Pink cheesecloth could be chosen for the table cover, the stuff gathered into graceful folds and caught with small dishes of pink bonbons, cakes with pink icings, and a centerpiece made of pink roses.

A menu that is in harmony would be: Lobster Newburg, brown bread sandwiches, shrimp salad, tongue in aspic, rolled white bread sandwiches tied with pink ribbon, olives stuffed with red peppers, strawberries, ice cream, cake, bonbons. The beverages can be lemonade with strawberries floating in it, sweetened with pink rock candy instead of sugar.

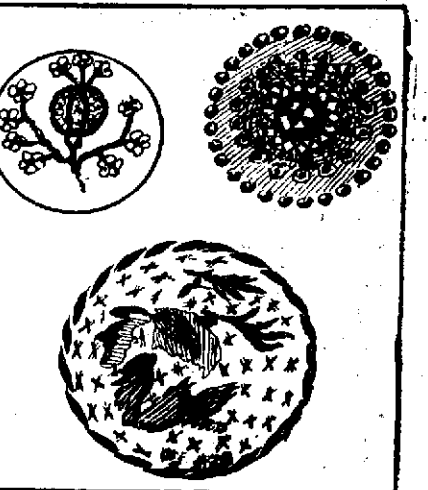

Wedding Gifts.

Wedding gifts should be acknowledged if possible within a day or two after they are received. Of course, a personal note from the bride is the best form, but it is not always possible, so she may relegate the duty to her mother, a sister or a dear friend, but there should always be the enthusiasm embodied in the note. The smallest present should have as warm an appreciation as the most costly. The name of the bridegroom should be associated in the reply of thanks.

VOGUE OF EMBROIDERY.

Observed in the Various Articles of Woman's Apparel—Now We Have the Embroidered Button.

The constancy with which fashion inculcates the introduction of embroidery and yet more embroidery on gowns, blouses, tea jackets, and what not gives lovers of fancy work the best of reasons for keeping their fingers busy, and as the modes of spring declare themselves they will find ever fresh impetus given to their efforts. Blouses are among the first subjects to be considered and here lies an unlimited field for the embroideress; for not only are the dainty blouses of demi-toilette to be adorned with ornamental stitchery, but it is also to embellish

those of the plainer and more shirt-like order which are the indispensable accomplishment of the tailor-made gown. At the shops embroidered blouses are the order of the day, finished, or prepared for working, in canvas, linen, flannel, or silk, ornamented with embroidery or with the cut work which is so greatly in request. Embroidered buttons are a fancy of the day, and these show a range of charming designs, a few of which we illustrate. These can be carried out in any coloring desired, or can be had as traced patterns only, to be made up when worked. A propos of buttons, a London dealer is showing some hand-made washing buttons for linen blouses and dresses which have a peculiar interest as well as beauty of their own. They are the work of the peasant girls on a Polish estate, where, under the auspices of the lady of the manor, the work of button making, carried on while the workers are "minding the cows," is being developed into a remunerative industry. The buttons are made of white linen neatly stretched over metal rings, and closely covered over with lace stitches, and are both strong and extremely pretty.

KNITTED STAR QUILT.

Handwork Again Appreciated, and She That Can Knit Has an Accomplishment Worth While.

Cast on eight stitches with thread doubled, three stitches on each of two needles, and two on the third, and tie the ends. Knit once around, each single stitch, and you have 16 stitches. Every alternate or even row is knitted plain throughout, hence need not be mentioned.

First row—Over, knit two, repeat around.
Third row—Over, knit three, repeat.
Fifth row—Over, knit four, repeat.
Seventh row—Over, knit five, repeat.
Ninth row—Over, knit seven, repeat.
Eleventh row—Over, knit seven, repeat.

There are now eight stitches between each open row, and this is the widest part of the star, which begins to decrease as follows:

Thirteenth row—Over, knit, one, over, narrow, knit five, repeat.
Fifteenth row—Over, knit one, (over narrow) twice, knit four, repeat.
Seventeenth row—Over, knit one, (over narrow) three times, knit three.
Nineteenth row—Over, knit one, (over narrow) four times, knit two repeat.

Twenty-first row—Over, knit one, (over narrow) five times, knit one, repeat.

Twenty-third row—Over, knit one, (over narrow) six times, repeat.

Twenty-fifth row—Cast off loosely, so that the work will not pull or draw, until you have 14 stitches on the left-hand needle, and one stitch on the right. With these stitches knit nine rows or squares of basket work—that is, for the first row, purl three, knit three, purl three, knit three, purl three, knit three; then knit another row like first, and repeat. In joining, turn all the basket work in the same direction for first row, and in opposite direction for alternate rows. The little squares of basket work then fill the spaces between the eight-sided figures formed by the stars.

"E. S. V. P."

The letters stand for the words "Respond, s'il vous plait," which, in English, means, "Reply, if you please." Either a regret or an acceptance to a card party should be sent within a day after receiving it, as the hostess may have to fill the place if the former is sent.

For an Oily Complexion.

A pinch of borax put into the water each time the face is washed will correct the tendency of unbecoming oiliness.

SULPHUR VANQUISHES THE ADA BOYS ONCE MORE

Ada lost for the third time to Sulphur Wednesday afternoon, 8 to 5.

While the visitors held the lead throughout, the locals had what the grandstand thought was a look in the eighth inning, then three runs were batted in, and again in the ninth when Sulphur's third baseman made two errors and the team started up.

In the eighth, after Foster struck out, Baldwin put a clean single over second, and scored on Luttrell's two bagger into right. "Peewee" took third on Schebaun's line drive between second and first, Schebaun stealing second. Both were scored on Kaissers' scratch to third, but the scoring stopped.

In the ninth, Gregory got first on Hardy's error, but was thrown out at second on Foster's pop-up which Shaw got on the bound. Foster was caught at second by Mackey on Baldwin's easy grounder. Baldwin stole second and third, and scored on Hardy's error. "Peck" redeemed himself, however, by a brilliant running catch of Schebaun's foul fly, and the game was over.

Thrown From a Wagon.

George Bardell, the accommodating night clerk at the Harris Hotel, met with a painful accident Thursday morning. He was out in the country riding on the running gear of a wagon drawn by two mules when they jumped a small but deep ditch in the road; throwing him to the ground. One wheel passed over his body breaking his arm and collar bone.

STATEHOOD WILL HELP FARMERS TO ORGANIZE

Guthrie, June 28.—Among the important benefits that will come to Indian Territory with statehood is that of complete organization of farmers, such as is now found in all counties of Oklahoma.

C. A. McNabb, secretary of the board of agriculture, has just returned from Indian Territory where he worked in the interests of Oklahoma Agricultural exhibit for the Jamestown exposition.

Mr. McNabb says that all commercial organizations of Indian Territory are giving their aid toward collecting material for the exhibit and that the combination of both Oklahoma and Indian Territory products will, in all probability, rank fully as high as did the Oklahoma exhibit at St. Louis.

Through the Oklahoma board of Agriculture immediate steps are to be taken to thoroughly organize the Territory farmers.

Shudder at the Name.

Several highly cultured persons from the east shudder hearing the names given by the primitive cowboys to some of the creeks in this country. We have Skeleton, Bottle, Wild Horse, Bell Cow, Skull, Red Mule, Gopher, Mustang, Ghost and several other rather oddly named creeks. The less euphonious and to some extent blasphemously named streamlet is dashing, splashing, rushing, tumbling Hellroaring creek in Pawnee county. Even the religious people of the triangular county have become us to the irreverently sounding name of the most romantic tributary of the salty, lower Cimarron. Several protracted M. E. campmeetings have been held on the rocky banks of the streamlet, and the campmeetings on classic Hellroaring creek are always extensively advertised in newspapers and on posters.—State Capital.

LIQUOR MAN PREDICTS STATE WILL BE DRY

Oklahoma City, Ok., June 28.—"You can put it down as a business proposition," said a prominent traveling man for a wholesale liquor house here today, "that the new state of Oklahoma is going to be prohibition. You wouldn't expect that statement from me, I'll admit, and for the sake of my business I am loath to make it, but I have studied conditions as they actually exist, not as I would like to have them from a business standpoint."

According to the prohibition provision as contained in the bill admitting Oklahoma to the Union, the new state known as that part, Indian Territory and all Indian reservations in Oklahoma will be restricted from the sale of liquor for 21 years.

"I have talked with a good many people in both territories about the prohibition movement, and I will venture to say that there is not a school house in either territory but what has a temperance organization of some kind. From the Indian Territory will come the greatest opposition ever experienced between one section and another because of the present provision. Take for instance Chickasha and El Reno. The people of Chickasha are not going to submit to El Reno's selling whiskey because they claim it will take business away from them. Then the people of Indian Territory will make the broader contention that one half of the state cannot be licensed to sell whiskey while the other half is prohibited from it. If the people of the Indian Territory are admitted to full citizenship, regardless of race, color, or previous condition of servitude, then there's no way to prevent the Indians from obtaining all the whiskey they want, the provision named above will not be effective. You will see when the constitutional convention comes that every delegate from the Indian Territory will stand pat for absolute prohibition, and I will venture to say that half of those from Oklahoma will stand with the Indian Territory fellows. From a business standpoint, if not from any reasons of sentiment, I will say, they will do it."

STANDARD OIL FIGHTERS NOW IN OKLAHOMA CITY

Two men who have been very much in the public eye of late are in Oklahoma City at the present time, one of whom is credited by Ida Tarbell, in her magazine stories of the Standard oil company, published in McClure's magazine, with having started the movement which has brought that corporation into the limelight of late. This individual is Frank Monett, formerly attorney general of the state of Ohio, who owes his failure of re-election directly to Standard oil influence.

Mr. Monett is here with J. C. Stephenson, assistant attorney general of the state of Arkansas. These two men are here on a secret mission, the nature of which they will not make public and concerning which no information could be obtained from the law firm of Crockett & Johnson, with which they have been noticed in frequent conferences during the past few days.

It is believed the distinguished visitors are here digging up evidence to be used against the great oil octopus. Mr. Monett is said to be in the employ of the government in prosecuting the big trust company, and Judge Stephenson is co-operating with the attorney general of the state of Arkansas in prosecuting the trusts in Arkansas and other states.

As attorney general of the state of Ohio, Mr. Monett drove the Standard Oil company out of the Buckeye state. In retaliation he was defeated at a subsequent election. It is said that, wherever he goes, he is constantly followed by sleuths of the big corporation under instructions to note and report his every movement. It is likely that Attorneys Monett and Stephenson will be in Oklahoma City for several days.—Oklahoman.

Washington, June 28.—The paragraph in the general deficiency bill conveying into the United States treasury the appropriation for the legislative assembly expenses of the territory of Oklahoma continues as follows:

"And no election for members of the legislative assembly, or for any other official authorized by the laws of the said territory, or delegate to congress shall be held under and in pursuance of said laws in the year of 1906; and all persons heretofore elected to any of said offices, now serving and performing the duties thereof, shall continue to serve in their respective offices and

Tennis Tournament.

Only one full set was played Wednesday afternoon in the tournament with the following results: Epperson and Holt playing the winners of the first gentlemen's double, Eddleman and Hargaway, 6-1. The game between Warren and Browall vs Epperson and Holt was not finished but will be at some later date.

This morning at 7:30 the ladies assembled on the tennis court for another interesting game—Misses Francis Deacon and Vera Fulton vs Misses Edna Fulton and Mildred Timberlake; after many "love games" the score stood "deuce" set.

After the game was finished the score keeper (a gentleman) challenged the winners of the last set, beating them 2-0 sets. The ladies are improving wonderfully in the "love" game and will soon be able to play the "deuce" game.

Another official game will be played this afternoon according to the program of the week's tournament.

Holdover for the Officers.

A provision has been inserted by the House of Representatives in the general deficiency bill directing the officials of the territory of Oklahoma to continue the maintenance of all public institutions and execute all existing contracts until the new state government shall have been established.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

To show what we of the south are doing it can be said, according to the latest statistics that the value of the south's cotton crops for the last five years was $2,974,000,000, or $395,000,000 in excess of the total and gold and silver production of the world for the same period. This was an average annual increase of $200,000,000 over the value of the South's cotton crop for the preceding five years. This $1,000,000,000 of increase in cotton in five years has lifted from this section its entire indebtedness and placed it on solid ground for the wonderful expansion that is daily being noted.—Muskogee Phoenix.

HER PRAYER FOR MAMMA.

Special Clause in Tot's Supplication Prompted by Fear of De-railment.

A Walbrook mother a few days ago before starting on a trip to Atlantic City told her two little daughters, whom circumstances forced her to leave at home, of the speed with which the great engines would hurry her train to the resort by the ocean and of miles and miles of glistening rails over which she would travel before reaching her destination, relates the Baltimore Herald.

That afternoon, after kissing the children good-by she asked them to remember her in their evening devotion, to which request the youngsters tearfully acquiesced. When the usual bed-

ADVICE FOR CHILDREN.

Before the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute, held recently, one of the chief questions under discussion was: "How to Rid the Schools of Tuberculosis?" In this connection Dr. S. A. Knopf, of the New York health department, gave the following advice for children:

- Do not spit except in a spittoon, or a piece of cloth, or a handkerchief, used for that purpose alone. On your return home have the cloth burned by your mother, or the handkerchief put in water until ready for the wash.
- Never spit on a slate, floor, sidewalk or playground.
- Do not put your fingers in your mouth.
- Do not pick your nose or wipe it on your hand or sleeve.
- Do not wet your finger in your mouth when turning the leaves of books.
- Do not put pencils in your mouth or wet them with your lips.
- Do not put anything in your mouth except food and drink.
- Do not swap apple cores, candy, chewing gum, half eaten food, whistles, bean blowers, or anything that is put in the mouth.
- Peel or wash your fruit before eating it.
- Do not kiss any one on the mouth.
- Never cough or sneeze in a person's face. Turn your face to one side, or hold a handkerchief before your mouth.
- Keep your face and hands and finger nails clean; wash your hands with soap and water before each meal.—Farmers' Review.

AMERICAN ARTISTS ABROAD

Their Merit Recognized and Rewarded Earlier Than It Is at Home.

Once more an American artist's picture holds the place of honor at the exhibition of the Royal Academy in London. Sargent had attained that honor; now it is Abbey's turn, with a picture distinctly American in subject, representing Columbus landing in the new world. Several other well-known American artists figure among the notable exhibitors. In the two annual picture shows now open in Paris, the same fact is true, reports the New York World.

American artists frequently complain, as do singers and musicians, that the surest way to distinction at home is recognition abroad. The protest implies that merit is not so readily accepted here as it is in France and England.

The distinction attained by Sargent in London has done more than all his early successes in this country to assure his preeminence. The same may be said to be true of Abbey, although fame came to him easy as an illustrator. Something may be due to the circumstance that for years both have done most of their work abroad. Beyond a doubt, however, art is viewed far more hospitably in Paris and London than in New York. We have yet no art exhibitions that occupy so large a place in popular life as the regular shows of the two foreign capitals.

It is noteworthy also that more contemporary American artists have room in the Luxembourg museum, where living painters must await admission to the Louvre, than in our own Metropolitan. The Paris list counts about 25, among them Whistler, Sargent, Winslow Homer, La Farge, Alexander Harrison, Henry Mosler, Walter MacEwen, Carl Melchers, Miss Cassatt, Edwin L. Weeks and H. O. Tanner.

Under the old management American artists were treated with suspicion at the Metropolitan. It was sometimes difficult to get their works through the museum's doors even as gifts.

Fortunate, all that is being rapidly changed. Sir Purdon Clarke advocates the necessity of building up a representative American collection. Mr. George A. Hearn has donated a large fund, of which the income is reserved for the purchase of American works. It is a curious commentary on American taste that it was not until a foreign director was put in charge of the Metropolitan that American artists were promised something of the same public recognition they receive from the French government.

TURKEY WITH WOODEN LEG

Tale of a Gobbler That Smacks Somewhat of the Munchausen Flavor.

In most communities there are certain persons who possess peculiar characteristics, habits and beliefs, and this is true of the 'long shore sportsman of the old Mother State as of persons dwelling elsewhere, says Forest and Stream.

Many of the old time sportsmen still carry and use their muzzle loading guns, which cannot be displaced by more modern arms. They usually manage to bag a good many birds and other game, and this is chiefly due, it is believed, to their knowledge of the habits of the game. They seldom go out without finding something.

A story is told of one gunner who if any of the shot should fall from his hands while loading his gun will at once return home and make no further effort to hunt that day, believing as he says, that those lost were his luck shot, and it would be useless for him to continue the hunt.

Another, whom I will call here Capt. Pete, is a sailor and all round sportsman. He loves to tell of his adventures with his dogs and gun, and is seldom seen without them. He tells many stories about the accuracy of Sweet Lips, his gun, and declares he can beat any man "a-shootin' for a turkey in the United States of Virginy."

On the occasion of a turkey hunt near the Rappahannock river Capt. Pete claims to have shot a 40-pound wild turkey, for which he was offered $4 cash. The gray whistlers on the turkey's breast were 18 inches long, and he had one wooden leg. Here Capt. Pete gives a laugh that could be heard a half mile away. "Sar, he was the biggest turkey I ever saw. There were 18 fellows in the bunch of us, and four others besides, and all ate a sumptuous meal from one-half of his breast."

Uncle Pete says he cannot account for that one wooden leg unless that turkey had been previously owned by some one as a pet turkey.

Natural Arm Chair.

A gardener in Korea has formed a natural arm-chair by twisting a growing vine to the required shape. It is also studded with seeds of the ginkgo tree, which have grown into the fiber of the vine. After the chair was fashioned in this way it was cut from the ground, dried and polished until it resembled mahogany. It is 3 feet 4 inches high, 25 inches wide and weighs over 100 pounds.

NO WASTE AS SCRAPS ARE ALWAYS MADE USE OF.

Seasoned Confectioners Considered the Best—Maker of the Sweets Must Be an Artist.

There is this similarity between the candy business and the iron business—the scrap is not allowed to go to waste. An observer who had an idea that candy manufacturers must have to stand a lot of loss because candies get stale, took the trouble to investigate and learned that his idea was wrong, says the New York Sun.

The big candy makers ship to their agents throughout the country at stated intervals, usually of a week, their standard confections, and all not sold at the expiration of the interval are returned to the factory as scrap. As the candy is mostly sugar, and sugar is as indestructible as iron, it is only a question for the candy maker of getting the sugar value out of the scrap. It is impossible to work over the candy in its original form, but it can be used in many ways. For example, the chief use to which stale chocolate is put is in making caramels and other chewy confections.

It's a mistaken idea that candy must be fresh to be good. One manufacturer who makes only for the trade and confines himself chiefly to high-class chocolates and bonbons said that candy wasn't fit to eat until it had been seasoned for at least ten days. For his own use—and he is a great lover of candy, despite the general belief that no cook cares for his own meases—he keeps chocolates about a month before eating them.

This man has no patience with those who assert that colored candy is poisonous. His argument is simple. As he puts it:

"What's the use of putting poison in candy when natural and harmless coloring matter costs less? Who'd put

NEW JERSEY 'RICKISHAS.

Vehicle of Yankee Make Has Invaded the Orient with Good Results.

That characteristic vehicle of the orient, the rikishas, is drawn by a yellow coolie in Japan, a brown Hindu in India, a black Zulu in South Africa; but look between the shafts of the 'rikisha in any of these countries, and you will probably find the same nameplate—that of a vehicle manufacturer in New Jersey. The Yankee rikishas has invaded the east, and its invasion promises to result in a permanent occupation of countries where cheap labor would seem to forbid sales of American goods.

The Yankee 'rikisha manufacturer competes on prices first. He sells vehicles as good as the native product at as low as $16 and no higher than $40. American factory methods permit turning them out in large numbers on the duplicate system. He also competes in quality, making rikishas with ball bearings, bicycle wheels and cushion tires at $30.

Different types of rikisha are made for different countries. The vehicle is common in Lagos, Ceylon, and many other localities, each of which has its preferences in the way of weight, height, hoods, bells, lamps, colors, and cushions. The New Jersey factory also supplies the "pousse-pousse" used in Madagascar. It is a variety of rikisha with hood and springs.

Another is the "Korean cab," which is nothing more than an improvement on the clumsy Chinese wheelbarrow with its single wheel, familiar as a passenger vehicle in all Chinese cities. The "Korean cab" has a single wheel fitted with a pneumatic tire, and seats one passenger, the seat being placed high over the wheel. Coolies in front and behind balance and propel it, and the vehicle is capable of good speed.

When the Yankee rikisha was introduced on the west coast of Africa, it was so much lighter than the vehicles previously known that the first Zulu who drew one presently stopped, lifted the vehicle and its passenger to his head, and wanted to carry it that way being easier. American wheelbarrows were introduced about the same time and a contractor who supplied them to his Fanti laborers, returning in a few hours, found them all being carried water-jar fashion.

FIND HEART OF RAMESES.

Vital Organ of Great Egyptian King Preserved in Vase for 3,164 Years.

A recent issue of the Comptes Rendus of the Paris academy contains an account of the successful identification of the heart of Ramesses II., the Sesotris of the Greeks, after having been preserved since 1258 B. C. in soda and resinoid antiseptics.

Some months ago, says the New York Times, the council of the National Museum of the Louvre acquired possession of the four vases in blue enamel which contain the viscera and heart of Ramesses II., and bear large medallions representing the names and attributes of the king.

The directors of the Egyptian museum desired absolute confirmation as to the contents of the vases and intrusted the examination of their contents to M. Lortet, who, with his colleagues, Professors Hugouenq, Renaut and Rigan, made a careful physiological examination. Three of the vases contained bandages of linen tightly compacted and hardened by the carbonate of soda and aromatic resinous substances of reddish color, which had been employed as antiseptics and had probably contained the stomach, intestines and liver of the great king. These viscera, however, were only found to be represented by a quantity of granular matter, mixed with a large proportion of powdered carbonate of soda and so could not be identified.

The fourth vase, which was fitted with a lid or cover adorned with the head of a jackal, proved to contain the heart. This organ was found transformed into a kind of oval plate, eight centimeters long and four centimeters wide. The substance of the heart was brittle and the saw had to be used in obtaining sections of it for examination and finally the razor, so as to reduce these sections to the attenuation necessary for microscopic examination.

Under the microscope these sections gave unmistakable evidence of the muscular fibers peculiar to the heart, especially characterized by being arranged in bundles of such fibers, crossing each other. Since this special muscular arrangement is not found in any other part of the body except the tongue and as the mummy of Ramesses II., which is preserved at Cairo, contains the tongue intact, the experts have no doubt whatever that the vase actually contained the heart of Ramesses II. flattened and transformed into a hornlike substance by its long sojourn in the soda preservatives.

King Ramesses II. died 1,258 years before the Christian era and hence some 3,164 years have elapsed since his heart was first embalmed.

Men Away from Home Miss Familiar Chores — Women Have Small Resources to Pass the Time — The Man with a Fad Most Fortunate—Book Reading Unsatisfactory in a Deserted House—Summer Time Hardest on the Man Whose Family Goes Away.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.
(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

A cat in a strange garret, a dog that has lost its owner, a fish out of water, each in turn symbolize the extreme of discomfort and misery. Discontent with one's environment is wretchedness.

Nobody who is intensely lonely can be anything but forlorn, although he may put a brave face on the situation and hide from the people he meets the yearning he has for home companionship. Men often feel the pangs of home-sickness and rebel against the dullness of solitude when their neighbors suspect them of no tedium and suppose them to be quite free and easy in their independence. A married man whose wife and children have gone away for a summer holiday, leaving him to hold the fort alone, picking up meals at clubs or restaurants, and sleeping in a house that echoes to the tread and has ghosts prowling about in every shadowy corner, is much to be pitied. Scores of such men go to business every day during the heated terms in our cities, and at night return to sleep in houses as silent as the tomb. They do not complain, they write jovial letters to the absent ones, and they make a pretense of engaging in such pastimes as are open to them, but the summer wears on their nerves.

A boy or man away from home for the first time, missing the familiar chores at morning or evening, and the mother-brooding that has been so constant and so sweet from childhood on, finds a boarding house among entire strangers as desolate as the desert.

What diversions are there for the lonely man? What shall Adam do in an Eden where there is no genial comrade to take him by the hand and make him feel that he is of much account?

Ever left to herself, finds plenty of occupation for brain and fingers. She may busy herself with delicate laundry work not to be entrusted to the rough handling of servants. Stocks, lace handkerchiefs, cuffs and collars and the various accessories of a feminine toilette, may be periodically renovated in her own room, if she have the needful apparatus. She has stockings to darn, mending to do, shirt-waists to make, hats to trim, embroidery to fill her leisure, and always endless letters to write and sometimes books to read. A woman has the advantage over a man in a multitude of small resources, trifling in themselves, but essentially worth while in their results, and excellent as things that pass away time that might be empty and lonely.

Notwithstanding a general opinion to the contrary, a man is more dependent on the society of others and on the friendship of his equals than is the average woman.

When a man has a fad or a hobby or some knack at cabinet making or upholstery, he is vastly better off than his neighbor who understands only the single round of the day's work. A fellow who plays a musical instrument, whether it be banjo, mandolin or piano, can always while away solitary evenings, but the man who is most to be envied is the one who can take an old, disreputable and broken-down bit of furniture, a desk, a table, a sofa, and spend long and patient hours on rubbing it down, polishing and restoring it, so that he serves a double purpose; not only does he save the enormous expense charged by the trade for renovating antique furniture, but he makes his wife or sister the envy of all her friends by the marvels of his workmanship.

In a plain little parsonage in the mountains, never mind where, there are chairs and dressing tables that anyone in the smart set might covet, evolved from the rubbish heap by the deft hand and skillful labor of a member of the family, who never finds time hanging heavily or knows the meaning of solitude, except in the sense of privilege and benefit.

A naturalist, whatever his field, is master of moods and often considers companionship superfluous. If one is devoted to the study of birds or butterflies or beetles, one need not dread a hermit life. Although one's home be in a crowded town, there are suburbs within reach and the man who would amuse his leisure by any department of scientific investigation, however humble, will not complain of loneliness.

Strange to say, although reading be one's passion, it is apt to pall in a house where one is the solitary occupant. The fire on the hearth in winter may give cheer and take away the sense of absolute seclusion, and a pipe is a good deal of company, but in summer, with windows open and a careless heart, even the pipe is a disappointing makeshift for a familiar household presence. One loves to read if there are people moving about, if somebody sits near with a bit of needlework, or if in another room there is the low-voiced talk of young people who are a world to themselves, or if in the nursery above there are little rosy children fast asleep. But a book read in the silence of a deserted house often adds emphasis to homesick yearning for company.

Of course, the man who is alone at home may write letters. Whether or not he does so depends on his facility in description and in the presence or absence of a gift of humor. A man deficient in the sense of humor loses nine-tenths of the happiness that might be his. Few situations are without a side that sparkles with fun for those who can discern it. A young man who lost everything in the San Francisco disaster wrote home to his people that for climatic reasons he had crossed the bay. "It is cooler over here," he said. And the letter in which he recounted a catalogue of misfortunes real enough to crush a weaker spirit, provoked irresistible laughter by its mirthful sallies. The man who sees the fun in things and who refuses to be tragic when there is the slightest chance to be comic is immeasurably more sensible and more fortunate than his fellow mortals who are nothing if not solemn and serious.

A good plan for husbands and sons abandoned in summer by their kinsfolk, as is our American custom, might be to pool their loneliness. It is not always safe for reasons of health and because of the accidents of sudden illness that sometimes seize those who are ordinarily well, for anyone to remain entirely alone in a house at night.

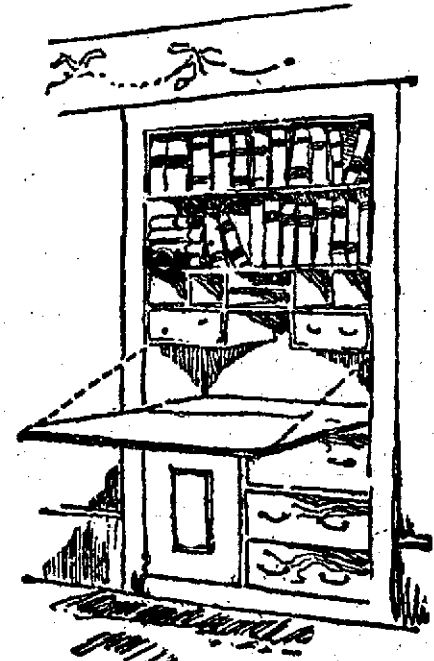

Few men fear the midnight burglar. With the silver in the safe deposit vault and the jewels in the possession of their wearers, there is little to tempt thieves, unless they are of the variety who steal lead pipes and burrow in the cellar. But two or three neighbors living together for a few weeks, with a housekeeper engaged to see that they have the material comforts of home, might defy loneliness and emerge from the season which to them affords only a fortnight's vacation none the worse for its experiences.

AN UNUSED DOORWAY.

Of Decided Value as Made Use Of by Either of the Means Here Suggested.

In the sitting-rooms of many houses built years ago are doorways which are quite unnecessary, remarks a writer in the Farmers' Review. Such a doorway can very easily be made to form a most useful piece of furniture.

Here are two good methods suggested by the New York World. In both the door is removed altogether and the top filled in with shelves, while the lower part in one is filled in with pigeon-holes, drawers and a writing flap above, a cupboard and drawers filling the space below, and forms a complete and most useful bureau, with drawers and shelves in which to stow all the belongings that, for writing purposes, one needs to have near at hand.

In the case of the other, the owner needed a place in which to stow large mounted photographs and sketches. The lower part of the recess is devoted to this, while above come drawers for smaller photographs, and above again shelves for books of reference. The top shelf, not being required at the moment, is filled with old china jars, and the whole effect is delightful.

Announcement Cards.

The announcement means that the wedding has taken place, therefore it cannot be sent until after the ceremony. Cards of announcement may be ready days beforehand; they may be addressed, sealed, stamped and in entire readiness for posting or sending in any preferred way, but not one should be sent until after the marriage ceremony has actually taken place and the couple really married. Announcement cards should be sent to all friends and acquaintances.

Hang-Nails.

Hang nails are possibly caused by the way you trim the sides of your nails; if you cut them too deeply there is nothing to support the flesh of the finger, and it covers the nail while growing; trim to leave sufficient nail to prevent the growing over, and there will be no hang nails. Use sharp nail scissors and cut the hang nail without making it sore in the least, and keep it clipped as it grows; never pull them out. Use warm vaseline for the nails.

To Remove Sunburn.

Barley boiled in water until the consistency of rich cream and used on the face will remove sunburn and leave the skin soft and white.

THE FASHIONABLE BOLERO

A Touch of Colored Velvet Seen on Lace Waist—Boleros Mark Late Mode.

One thing seen on the lace waists and lace boleros is a touch of colored velvet. On the boleros it is set in a little stiff collar piece around inside the neck and in little strips drawn through buckles or under buttons down the front. One finished with light blue had a little bias piece drawn through a central piece in the pattern at the back. It was put on horizontally and the ends were drawn out through small buckles, matched by the pieces in front.

A smart way of a useful little bolero is to have it cut almost like the old jacket bodice with a long fitted point in front, as though a corselet belt were cut in one with it, and fastening over just at the waist line in front with a big button of the same stuff. Say it is of one of the soft wools or of black moire. Two short straps, as it were, detach themselves from the front of the jacket, just below where it meets in a V shape, and do not close at the waist, but button down with rounded tab ends, and similar button on each side of the center or belt button tab.

One of the best ideas is to make a separate lawn lining for the little boleros to linen suits. A lawn bolero is cut exactly to the pattern of the linen bolero, sleeves and all, except that enough is taken off the depth to allow of a knife plaiting of lace edged lawn. This is an inch and a half deep when finished and projects only a speck from under the jacket, as frills are not deep this year. The lining is fitted into the jacket-seams inward and only needs to be fastened at the armholes, and has the inestimable advantage of washing and ironing separately, not to mention the saving in work.

FASHIONABLE PARASOLS.

How to Rejuvenate an Old Sun Shade to Make It Look Like Those Approved at the Moment.

Before going to work to cover or rejuvenate an old parasol with white, enamel the stick, as the white handle makes part of the prettiness. Other pretty handles are in the form of parrots and other gay tropical birds. They are highly colored and the frame is covered with silk to correspond. Chinese silks are one of the new coverings, some of the patterns being as effective as if painted. One of the convenient fashions for furnishing one's own parasol is the floppy ruffle, which again is put around the edge and which as often as not is finished with little tufts as it would be on a petticoat.

White cloth tailor makes form a part of the smartest wardrobe. Outing and yachting suits to which there are three pieces are popular in white serge. The natty little jackets trimmed with touches of white, dark blue, and brilliant red are to be worn over white linen or scarlet silk waists, while the shirt-waist made on severe lines is to be worn with the same skirt. Fancier tailor suits are trimmed with lace as if they were linens. One of the prettiest was made with a group of tucks and a row of insertion of Irish lace set above it. The zouave is cut quite short and is finished with a roll collar of white velvet, and has a little vest of Irish lace to match the skirt. The zouave is attached to the skirt by pretty buttons set on at both back and front.

Hosiery Styles.

The new stockings are worthy of note. They are embroidered and built upon openwork designs and they match the costume. This makes them very interesting from a woman's point of view, for they give her certain opportunities in dress which she did not have before. And the same with her shoes, which come in all colors. She can get them in kid, patent leather, in suede, in linen and in cloth.

"Princess" Materials.

Taffeta is the ideal material for the Princess skirt and jacket. But a great many of these suits are being made of foulard, and they are in all colors, brown, blue, gray and tan, for the foulards come this season in every color under the sun. And they are also in all materials, challis, cloth, novelty goods and white linen. Every material is impressed into the service.

SOCIAL OBSERVANCES.

The Afternoon Reception, the Receiving Party in Harmony of Color—Refreshment Room.

A "high tea" is only another name for the "at home" or afternoon reception. That is, the same rules for receiving guests and in their entertaining hold good to a great degree.

Perhaps in the matter of receiving there is more formality in the matter; usually a hostess asks several friends or members of the family to "stand" with her, as well as the special guest or perhaps young daughter or daughter-in-law about to be introduced.

An afternoon reception is a charming affair if well planned and carried out, and, while it entails considerable trouble upon the hostess, it relieves her of many social obligations at one time. She may invite more guests, for one thing, than could possibly be entertained any other way. The hours may be elastic. To some cards may be sent from "3 to 5;" to others the hours may be "4 to 6," and where there are several girls in the receiving party other cards may be sent to their young men friends and to other girls for the entire evening, with dancing.

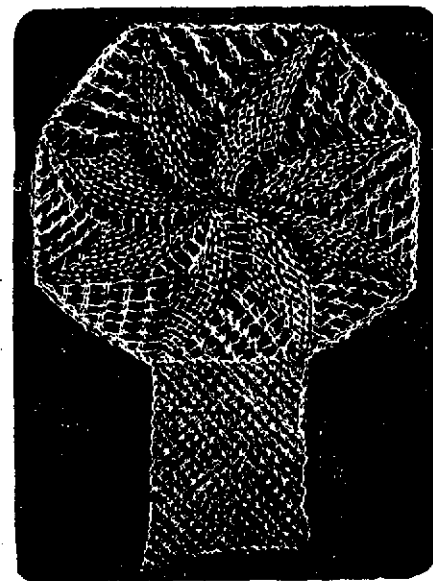

The receiving party stands in line, the ladies handsomely gowned, and colors should harmonize, making a lovely picture of the line with the lady of the house at which the affair is held at the head. She shakes hands with guests as they enter and introduces them to the other ladies, thus allowing each guest to pass from one to the other.

In an adjoining room, usually the dining-room, refreshments are served by attendants, and here there are usually assembled several intimate friends without hats, whose duties are to see that guests are properly served as they enter. Pretty girls or young matrons are selected to serve frappes, punches, ices or hot chocolate and tea from tables, and the guests are expected to greet and ask for anything of the sort that they like, as well as to help themselves to sandwiches, bonbons and sweetmeats on the table. There is no definite time to remain; ten minutes is long enough, and an hour not too long, but it is good form not to stay after the latest hour named on the cards received. An adieu to the hostess and receiving ladies should always be made if possible when leaving.

A RIBBON IN YOUR HAIR.

Ribbon Is at Last as Much the Rage as Was Prophesied Some Little Time Ago.

Probably the most startling innovation is the "Bath Bow," made popular by Miss Ellaine Terris, and which is having a great vogue in London. This bow is woven with the pompadour, or with parted hair and the coronet braid. The ribbon is run through the hair in front, with just enough showing to make it charmingly becoming. The two ends are then tied in a big bow at the back of the hair, and the effect is decidedly quaint and novel. The bath bow will undoubtedly be popular with the belle of the watering place who feels the want of a bit of ribbon to hold her wind-blown, not to say dampened tresses in place, and she will welcome the possibilities of the bow for binding the inevitable scolding locks. Just the right color of ribbon or gauze placed near the hair brings out all its luster and beauty, but of course the danger of choosing the wrong color is great. All the fads of the moment depend for their success on the taste and judgment of those who indulge in them. The vogue of things in Empire style has brought the Empire bow, a rather severe knot of ribbon, with no loose ends and wired loops. This is usually placed in front of the Empire corsage or forms the shoulder straps to the very deficient Empire sleeve.

Well-Kept Hands.

A piece of pumice stone, to rub off ink and other stains, should be found on every toilet stand, also a lemon to rub on the nails and under them, to remove any stain or discoloration. Then wash the hands perfectly clean, rub with almond cream, in order to make plump and healthy looking, scrape the flesh back from the nails, trim properly, and polish with camellia polish. This treatment will insure well-kept hands.

For the Feet.

For perspiring feet dissolve an ounce of sulphate of soda in a pint of hot water and rub the feet over with this every night and morning. Dust a little boracic acid into the stockings.

TROUBLED-HOUSTESS

A FEW SUGGESTIONS THAT SHE MAY FIND WELCOME.

Some Little Dinner Tricks—An Impromptu Guessing Contest That Made Diversion—Household Hints.

After Dinner Tricks.

When fruit has been served with the dessert, and in consequence there are finger bowls on the table, it is curious as well as amusing to wet the middle finger and pass it slowly around the rim of the bowl, keeping a firm pressure. In a moment a low, loud drawn out musical tone will be heard; each glass will give out a different tone and the result when several glasses are emitting sounds at the same time is a strange mixture of harmony.

An after dinner trick much enjoyed by children is to put walnut shells filled with brandy or alcohol into their finger bowls and then light them. These burning ships at sea are a wonderful sight, and grown people as well as the children are not averse to watching this exciting end to a dinner party.

Guessing Contest.

An amusing guessing contest was arranged in the most impromptu manner by a hostess at a recent evening party. It afforded no end of fun and astonishment in showing how very little a person knew about the detail of common things and how very deceptive the eye is. Objects were hastily gathered and placed on a table, pencils and paper provided, and 20 minutes allowed in which to answer the following questions:

What is the height of a man's silk hat?
How many seeds in an apple or an orange?
What is the weight of an egg?
How many peanuts in a pint?
How many spots in a pack of cards?
Draw the face of a clock.
What is the diameter of a half dollar?
How many spokes in a wheel?
How many matches in a box?

An anxious housewife asks "how to keep home-made bread moist and for a good recipe for ice cream."

In reply to the first question there are two ways of keeping the bread; one is in a regular tin box with a lid that comes especially for the purpose, and the other and a most satisfactory way is to put the loaves in an earthenware crock, cover with a bread cloth and put a plate over the top.

Personally I like a cream made without eggs, so I give this recipe. To every quart of cream add six tablespoonsful of powdered sugar and any flavoring desired. Many people use corn starch and gelatine, but one of the most successful makers of ice cream told me never to use anything but pure cream and sugar with any fruit, strawberry, banana, nuts or crushed macaroons.

MADAME MERRI.

CHARMING ROSE PARTY.

The Invitations Bespeak the Character of the Affair—The Decorations and Refreshments.

A rose party suggests many outdoor delights. The invitations may be done on pink paper in a deep shade, written with red ink. If they are decorated with a painted rose or a bunch of roses so much the better, but in any case they should be on pink paper. The rooms may be decorated in pink cheesecloth festooned about the walls, with large pink paper roses to catch the loops.

Paper roses may be made into garlands and twined about the piazza posts, and hung in wreaths between the arches. Pink lanterns should furnish the light on the piazzas and in the grounds, but in the house the only light should come from pink candles burning under small pink shades.

Real roses may be present in abundance, banded over fireplaces, in corners, and placed in vases and bowls everywhere. Growing rose bushes should be used as a background, combined with palms, and each of the hostesses should carry a bouquet of roses.

Of course, the young girls will be clad in pink gowns or in white combined with pink, and, of course, the refreshments, so far as possible, will be pink.

Pink cheesecloth could be chosen for the table cover, the stuff gathered into graceful folds and caught with small dishes of pink bonbons, cakes with pink icings, and a centerpiece made of pink roses.

A menu that is in harmony would be: Lobster Newburg, brown bread sandwiches, shrimp salad, tongue in aspic, rolled white bread sandwiches tied with pink ribbon, olives stuffed with red peppers, strawberries, ice cream, cake, bonbons. The beverages can be lemonade with strawberries floating in it, sweetened with pink rock candy instead of sugar.

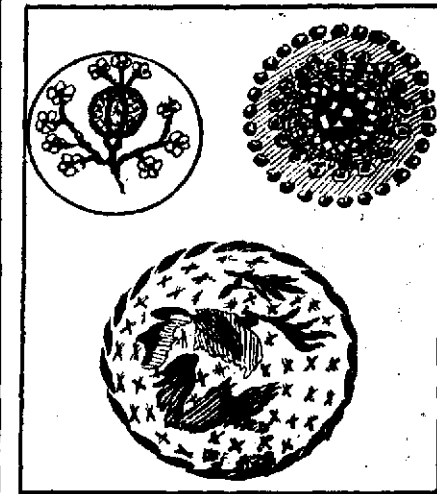

Wedding Gifts.

Wedding gifts should be acknowledged if possible within a day or two after they are received. Of course, a personal note from the bride is the best form, but it is not always possible, so she may relegate the duty to her mother, a sister or a dear friend, but there should always be the enthusiasm embodied in the note. The smallest present should have as warm an appreciation as the most costly. The name of the bridegroom should be associated in the reply of thanks.

VOGUE OF EMBROIDERY.

Observed in the Various Articles of Woman's Apparel—Now We Have the Embroidered Button.

The constancy with which fashion inculcates the introduction of embroidery and yet more embroidery on gowns, blouses, tea jackets, and what not gives lovers of fancy work the best of reasons for keeping their fingers busy, and as the modes of spring declare themselves they will find ever fresh impetus given to their efforts. Blouses are among the first subjects to be considered and here lies an unlimited field for the embroiderer; for not only are the dainty blouses of demitoelette to be adorned with ornamental stitchery, but it is also to embellish

those of the plainer and more shirt-like order which are the indispensable accomplishment of the tailor-made gown. At the shops embroidered blouses are the order of the day, finished, or prepared for working, in canvas, linen, flannel, or silk, ornamented with embroidery or with the cut work which is so greatly in request. Embroidered buttons are a fancy of the day, and these show a range of charming designs, a few of which we illustrate. These can be carried out in any coloring desired, or can be had as traced patterns only, to be made up when worked. A propos of buttons, a London dealer is showing some hand-made washing buttons for linen blouses and dresses which have a peculiar interest as well as beauty of their own. They are the work of the peasant girls on a Polish estate, where, under the auspices of the lady of the manor, the work of button making, carried on while the workers are "minding the cows," is being developed into a remunerative industry. The buttons are made of white linen neatly stretched over metal rings, and closely covered over with lace stitches, and are both strong and extremely pretty.

KNITTED STAR QUILT.

Handwork Again Appreciated, and She That Can Knit Has an Accomplishment Worth While.

Cast on eight stitches with thread doubled, three stitches on each of two needles, and two on the third, and tie the ends. Knit once around, each single stitch, and you have 16 stitches. Every alternate or even row is knitted plain throughout, hence need not be mentioned.

First row—Over, knit two, repeat around.
Third row—Over, knit three, repeat.
Fifth row—Over, knit four, repeat.
Seventh row—Over, knit five, repeat.
Ninth row—Over, knit seven, repeat.
Eleventh row—Over, knit seven, repeat.

There are now eight stitches between each open row, and this is the widest part of the star, which begins to decrease as follows:

Thirteenth row—Over, knit, one, over, narrow, knit five, repeat.
Fifteenth row—Over, knit one, (over narrow) twice, knit four, repeat.

Seventeenth row—Over, knit one, (over narrow) three times, knit three.
Nineteenth row—Over, knit one, (over, narrow) four times, knit two repeat.

Twenty-first row—Over, knit one, (over, narrow) five times, knit one, repeat.

Twenty-third row—Over, knit one, (over, narrow) six times, repeat.

Twenty-fifth row—Cast off loosely, so that the work will not pull or draw, until you have 14 stitches on the left-hand needle, and one stitch on the right. With these stitches knit nine rows or squares of basket work—that is, for the first row, knit three, knit three, knit three, knit three, knit three; then knit another row like first, and repeat. In joining, turn all the basket work in the same direction for first row, and in opposite direction for alternate rows. The little squares of basket work then fill the spaces between the eight-sided figures formed by the stars.

"R. S. V. P."

The letters stand for the words "Respond, s'il vous plait," which, in English, means, "Reply, if you please." Either a regret or an acceptance to a card party should be sent within a day after receiving it, as the hostess may have to fill the place if the former is sent.

For an Oily Complexion.

A pinch of borax put into the water each time the face is washed will correct the tendency of unbecoming oiliness.

The Eyebrows.

Plain yellow vaseline makes the eyebrows and lashes grow and darkens them, too.
